MR. DRUMMER 1986

Motorcycles and cops predominate in the fantasies in the contest that made Mike Murray Mr. Drummer 1986. But the real showstopper this year was a spectacularly erotic Martial Arts performance by JimEd Thompson and Chris Burns.

MR. DRUMMER 1985

Mr. Drummer 1985, Steve Reiswig, takes the honors with a fantasy that involves AIDS and death and is still uplifting and erotic.

MR. DRUMMER 1984

Ray Woods and Steve Reiswig do an impressive and very macho Big Bird number, but Sonny Klein takes the title with a spectacular high-ladder act.

"If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music he hears, however measured or far away."

How Many Fairies Can Dance on the Head of the Mall?

On Sunday October 11 over half a million gay men and women, and their friends and supporters, marched around the White House, up Pennsylvania Avenue to the Mall in front of the US Capitol building. Somewhere along the way more than half seem to have become invisible! The following is a report on this great mystery by Ed Sikov in his Media Watch column in the Oct. 26 New York Native:

"In the late afternoon on October 11, the Rev. Jesse Jackson was standing in front of the Capitol of the United States addressing what was, by all eyewitness accounts, an extremely large group of people. According to Jackson, the crowd numbered 500,000 'by conservative estimate.' A few minutes before Jackson gave his keynote address, march organizers announced from the stage that the crowd estimate had been revised upward, from 600,000 to 650,000. Less than an hour later, a newscaster on the ABC affiliate in Pittsburgh, WTAE-TV, announced to his viewing audience on the 6 p.m. Eyewitness News that a total of 25,000 demonstrators had gathered that afternoon in Washington; this figure was exactly half the number cited by the United States Park Service at 1 p.m., an hour after the demonstrators began to pour out of the Ellipse, solidly packing the broad avenues between the White House and the Mall with loud and angry taxpayers.

"By 5:30 p.m., just about the time Jackson was conservatively estimating half-a-million marchers, the Park Service acknowledged that the antigovernment demonstration was at least four times larger than the figure of 50,000 claimed earlier by the government. It was a fine example of what science calls a 'personal error.' Personal errors, as distinguished from 'instrumental errors,' result from the extent to which the observer's biases affect (or, in this case, actually effect) his or her judgment. The Park Service experts, whose federally funded job is to gauge crowd size, missed the mark by (at least) a whopping 400%, a 'margin of error' so huge that statisticians would cease to describe it as such. (Opinion: Of the 200,000 demonstrators acknowledged by the Park Service, my guess is that at least 400,000 resent being called Albany, you get the difference between the Times and the figure announced from the stage."

The wild variety of numbers reported by the press as described by Mr. Sikov above, and as heard and seen by many of us in various gay and straight media, is unbelievable. As a zoologist I have had some experience in estimating animal liars by their government.)

"Only the New York Times managed to work the Park Service's laughable early estimate of 50,000 into their story (all references to March coverage are October 12, unless otherwise stated). Yet it was the Times that reported that the March's organizers had claimed 300,000, whereas the Washington Post cited the very same organizers claiming 500,000, while all the participants, regardless of their actual number, distinctly heard the organizers themselves claim 650,000. For the record, the difference between the figures cited by the Times and the Post equals the combined populations of Albany, Poughkeepsie, Elmira, Larchmont, and Massepegua Park, New York. If you add on White Plains and a second populations, particularly in bat colonies that may range from a few dozen to several million. I would place the figure closer to one-half million than onequarter million. But, in my naivete, I figured the best source of information would be the newsweeklies. Time and Newsweek have been my major source of information on the events of the world for several years. I thought I could trust them, particularly Newsweek, to present a detailed and honest report on the March. I expected it to get a page of coverage, and perhaps more. Dumb!

The October 12 issues of the two newsweeklies contained not a mention. This did not surprise me, the March had been on the 11th. However, after reading the October 19 Newsweek cover to cover. I found only a single line having anything to do with the March. In their weekly page of quotes and cartoons was the line "Your gloves don't match your shoes!" with which a demonstrator at the Supreme Court assaulted the gloved police officers. 200,000-600,000 people conducted a 2-5 day demonstration in the nation's capital and the only thing Newsweek found worth mentioning was the one line quoted above. One line more, I should point out, than Time found newsworthy.

To the Park Service, most of us there did not exist. To Time and Newsweek NONE of us existed. We seem to have stepped out of our closets into invisibility. As I write this, the week of November 9th, only a single letter to the editor complaining about this noncoverage has been printed in Newsweek and no editorial response was printed with it. After 20 years of continuous subscription to one or both of these, and dependence upon them for my information about the world, I have lost confidence.

But whatever the rest of the world thinks of the March, I know I thought it was great! In spite of the cool and overcast weather the atmosphere was electric with the enthusiasm, and determination, of the thousands who had come from around the country. In many Gay Pride parades I have witnessed/participated in there seems to be an emphasis on the outrageous. There was little or none of that at the March. There was virtually no drag. Within the leather contingent one woman led a man on a leash (many straight and bisexual S/M organizations participated) but everyone was dressed in the leathers they normally wear to socialize, not exotic costumes often seen for "performance" appearances. The entire aura of the March was that this was not time for "performance," this was a time

STICKS & STONES, WHIPS & CHAINS: THE FINAL CHAPTER

In reference to R.F.'s letter containing falsehoods and distorted facts concerning the integrity of any actions witnessed by persons in attendance at the Disciples of de Sade's Discipline II last November, i feel compelled to write an inrefutable [sic] rebuttal. The falsehood referred to concerns the actions of a M.O.D., Top Man, who is accused of continued whipping of a slave who appears to have passed out. Both points are incorrect.

First, the slave did not pass out on the rack during the disciplinary action taking place. He did, however, pass in and out after being released from the rack along with his fellow slave who was on the rack with him. He did become later incoherent from too much alcohol, which was unfortunate, but nevertheless true. The slave in question was restrained on a revolving rack, along with another slave, and while in his drunken stupor, he became foulmouthed and unnecessarily vociferous to the Top. At all times, he was coherent and lucid, but mostly quietly voicing his ventup frustrations into the ears of the other slave. i know this to be true and factual, for i am the other slave!

Both slaves were released from the poorly, constructed, unsafe revolving rack by the Top and another man who is a member of the Chicago Hellfire Club, not a member of the Disciples! Only the slave that had been drinking was asked to leave the premises, which he did, but let it be noted that after an open and written apology to the officers of the Disciples of de Sade, he was permitted to return the following evening to attend their banquet affair.

The second falsehood is R.F.'s untrue statements concerning the use of metal-bottom votive candles in a scene at one of the M.O.D. Fantasy Night affairs! The president of the M.O.D. Club, who is the strongest advocate of safe and sane S&M play, has repeatedly insisted that anyone "playing" in the former M.O.D. Dungeon, adhere to the rules as set down and required by the lists of regulations. If anyone, during any Fantasy Night held by the M.O.D., failed to observe those rules, it has inadvertently escaped notice by our Dungeon Master.

R.F. referred to the M.O.D. Fantasy Nights as "sizzling"! How very appropriate and astute of him to have noticed., since if R.F. is whom we think he is, he was very busy and occupied into raunch and unsafe fist fucking! Yes, our Nights are definitely "sizzling," but not from his inane references to the sizzle that comes from burning candles! Let this perpetrator of rumors and ignorance come forth and face his adversaries with his tedious and distorted facts, before he again pleasures his sorrowful, sordid mind by publicly displaying his lack of intelligence. Let it further be noted that i, for one, am not worried about my name being printed in any publication or letter that i write. i refuse to remain anonymous.

phillip donatien pereiere Secretary to M.O.D. and slave Dallas, TX

i would like to take the time to answer R.F.'s letter which appeared in Drummer's Malecall column in issue 108.

Being the slave in question, let me say i was not passed out. i was being punished for using four letter words to my Master. Every time my Master whipped me, i deserved what i got. i will admit that i was drunk, but i apologized to all concerned, and was allowed to return the next evening.

R.F.'s letter is one big lie. Drunk, yes! Passed out, NO!

There is no other Top/Master that i would let do to me the things he does, as i trust Him with my life, my soul and my very own being.

Now this is the story as it happened, and i do hope that after a year, this story can finally be put to sleep!

slave howard Dallas, TX

Ed.: We have received similar letters from the Top in the scene described above and from another observer. I say "Amen" to slave howard's last sentence. This is the last on the matter we will publish.—AFD

CAUTION: Every decision a person makes, including the decision to get out of bed in the morning, has some degree of risk associated with it. We strongly believe that each competent adult must set for themselves the level of risk he or she is willing to accept. Some avoid crossing streets in heavy traffic—others stunt-ride motorcycles without a helmet. However, to intelligently confront and accept risk, a person must understand the dangers.

While Drummer hopes to educate its readers on a wide variety of topics, its main purpose is to entertain! Works of fiction presented in this magazine are just that fiction! They are not in any way intended to suggest or describe activities that anyone should—or often could—actually do. They are meant for entertainment only. In other than fictional pieces, we will emphasize safe sex with respect to contagious diseases and safe and sane behavior with respect to all activities and will try to point out all activities which deviate from generally recog

APE OVER TATTOO

I went totally "ape" over the Drummer tattooed coverman on issue 107! Not since the model Barry was the coverman in Drummer 23 have I gotten so sexually excited over a Drummer coverman. Barry also had a lot of gorgeous tattoos, by the way.

I really love tattoos on men, and I would hope that you would have more pictures of tattooed dudes in future issues of Drummer. Tattoos, or, as I call it, "body art," makes a man look manlier. To me, tattoos make a man seem rebellious, iconoclastic and nonconformist, and that's what I like in another man.

I was disappointed, though, that you did not include an accompanying article discussing the sociocultural and historical phenomenon of tattoos.

M.A.A.

Ed.: The reaction to the cover of Drummer 107 was very positive, but several readers did feel disappointed that there wasn't more on tattoos inside. Sorry, it was not our intention to be misleading. The young man on the cover goes by the nickname "Tattoo" and that is what we printed; it was his name, not the subject of an article. However, in Drummer 112 we WILL be featuring tattoos as a fetish. You can still rush in your contribution. Send us a spe-

AUDIO SADISM

Thanks for mentioning the volume inflicted on us in the places which we support financially. On several occasions, I and other members of our fraternity have approached bartenders, waiters, managers at our local establishments, requesting the volume of the music be lowered. The answer to our request was "That's what they want." They? We are filling the cash registers. Perhaps if we only move our lips when communicating with the bar staff, our message will reach the management.

OBNOXIOUS PIG

I dare you to print this. But, you won't. How come always the names at the end of your paragraphs are always initials, etc.? My name is Barry Ross, and I live in Miami FL, and I am not ashamed of it. I suck straight guys and eat ass from straight guys, and guys who love women but will let a queer eat their cock and ass, dirty as it may be. You, with all your leather, etc., are not as masculine as my straight construction workers, etc., who just need a good queer cocksucker ass-eater, who loves shit. You see I live, what you all fantasize. Capiche??

Barry Ross Miami, FL

Ed.: This asshole also dared me to publish his address and phone number along with this letter, but if he wants to advertise, he can pay for it just like everyone else. Besides why should he want us leather queers when he has his "REAL MEN." I don't give a fuck what he does with who. But I'm so damn sick and tired of the put-down artists who have to badmouth everyone else that all I want to give them is a good swift kick to the balls. —AFD

MADE TO ORDER

I believe if anyone can, it is you who can advise on which videotapes show the action expected by a Drummer reader. Rather than go into all the negatives re videotapes, I will list specifically what I am looking for:

 Should focus almost exclusively on use of equipment.

Operator should function authentically in control.

 Subjects should have athletic bodies with good round buns and low-hanging big balls.

 Should have a lot of prolonged views of buns with balls being worked on below, with and without equipment.

5) A minimum to no oral or anal action, but a lot of I/O.

Exclusively male with no hint of female. I sure would appreciate it if you could jot down on this page the name(s) of such videotapes and send it to me in the enclosed SASE.

> E.R. Santa Monica, CA

Ed.: The response I sent was "NONE." I know of no tape that meets all of these specifications. I know of some that meet #1, a few that meet #2. Lots meet #3, but none of these also meet #4. I know of lots of J/O movies, but none that also feature ball work. My advice is to invite over some friends, get a camcorder, and do-it-yourself.

ALONE IN SOUTH FLORIDA

Initially, I would like to congratulate you on your fine magazine. I have for some time been interested in the lifestyles your magazine illuminates. I have tried to enter into the leather scene for over a year now but have found the scene lacking or totally absent here in south Florida. I have frequented such places as Tacky's in Ft. Lauderdale and The Hole in Miami and have seen virtually no leather. There is a disturbing lack of ads for south Florida in your magazine (I realize you have no control over this).

I myself am 32 years old, 6'3" and 240 lbs.—not muscular but I am still losing weight. I have a 48-50" chest, a 42" waist and a nice covering of hair, front and back, brown hair and beard and hazel eyes and am considered good-looking. I am bottom sexually and have been looking for a special man to be my top. In my quest for him I have been subjected to severe forms of torture without any preliminaries to find my limits. I realize that limits exist for the purpose of expanding them.

My questions are these: 1) Are there any organizations or places in south Florida that cater to the leather community that welcome newcomers to the leather scene?

2) Do you think my being a "big guy" and burley are against my finding a Top and what can I do about it?

3) Would it be advantageous to me to place a personal ad in the local gay newspaper and magazines such as yours?

4) What is the current status of the leather community nationally? From all appearances, in south Florida, the leather community appears to be dying out.

> C.B. Ft. Lauderdale, FL

Ed.: Advice to the lovelorn is not really the function of the Malecall column and I probably should have forwarded this letter to Larry Townsend for his Leather Notebook, but there were some points I wanted to respond to.

1) There are LOTS of leather/levi clubs in Florida. Just check out the most recent club lists in Drummer and you will find nearly 20 listed from Florida. Write to some of these, drop by their bar nights.

Talk to men in club colors. Many of these clubs are happy to help newcomers get acquainted.

2) Yes, big bottoms do have a harder time finding Tops. You can keep losing weight, you can keep looking for the Top who likes big men, and you can practice at being Top yourself some of the time.

 It would be advantageous to place an ad in Drummer, and for you to answer those that are placed in Drummer. And don't overlook the "Nationwide" section, too.

4) I think that the leather community is alive and well and living in south Florida as well as elsewhere in the country. There were many men from Florida at Inferno this year and there were many at the Leather Conference in Washington. But I do feel that the leather community, as well as gay male society in general, is moving away from bars as their primary place to socialize, thus perhaps making themselves a bit less visible to the newcomer. Keep trying and good luck.

HEAVY PRAISE

I just found Drummer 103 which I had lost before I'd had a chance to really read it, and I take my hat off to you. It's a hot mag, with lots of hot Texas men, no matter what some (Drummer 107, S.R. from Santa Rosa) may think. I did see a letter in

Malecall of Drunimer 103 that I think screams for a response: "Heavy Criticism" by H.M. in Stamford, CT. (I'll try very hard not to be overly caustic, but I read it several days ago, and I'm still angry; please excuse any excesses.)

Apparently H.T. was at his local adult bookstore and mistakenly bought Drummer instead of Blueboy or another of the baby-oil mags. If H.T. wants to limit his tastes to those plastic bodies so "perfect" one can see the mold lines, that's fine; he has no business expecting, no, demanding the same from what is by lightyears the best man's mag in the U.S. I also think that using such words as "tubby," waddle," "pigs," etc., is indefensible.

I am not, by the way, heavy; I'm 6'1 and around 165 lbs. I did, however, grow up in the rural South, around big men with big dicks who were not, nor ever would be, chic and trendy. That's where my heart and hard-on still is, and "my men" eat meat and potatoes, don't wear Obsession, aren't granola heads, and are not antismoking activists. I want power and action from a man.

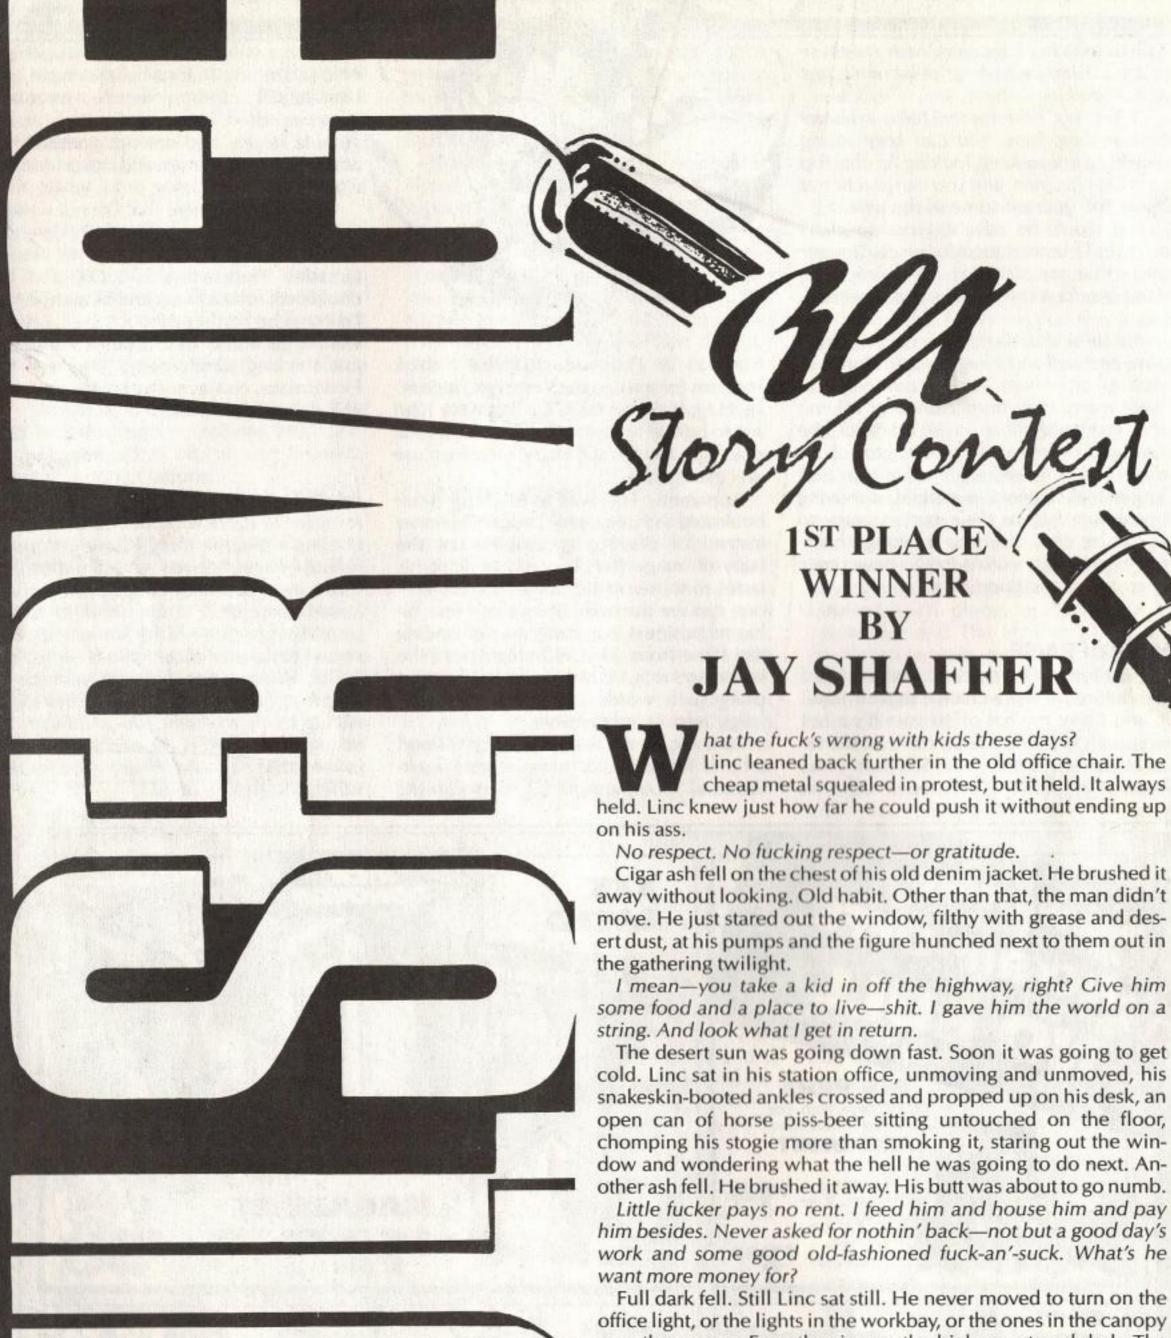

I should admit here that I'm not writing this response solely for the sake of defense; H.T. has cruelly attacked one of my hottest fantasies. Fledermaus is HOT, and he could beat my ass black and blue any time. I'd crawl on my belly for . . . Well, I don't want to get into all that; my dick's dripping just thinking about being dogmeat for Fledermaus. Not everybody feels the way H.T. does, thank God.

C.B. Bloomington, IN

Ed.: H.T.'s letter in Drummer 103, and my response to it, are without doubt the most commented-upon thing I have ever published! I have received several letters like C.B.'s, most of which I have been embarrassed to publish. I am used to being sought out because of my S/M talents, but since I am one of those who is turned off by fat, I have great difficulty thinking of myself as HOT! However, I am definitely willing to try to learn! I look forward to taking a whip to C.B. the next time we are in the same city. And I thank God for the variety in tastes in men!

Full dark fell. Still Linc sat still. He never moved to turn on the office light, or the lights in the workbay, or the ones in the canopy over the pumps. Even the sign on the highway stayed dark. The traffic was lighter than usual. Not all that much business lost. Not that it mattered. One night's receipts never entered his mind. Linc's U-Pump-It was closed for the evening, the first time in seventeen, eighteen years, while its owner leaned back in his office chair and its principal pump boy knelt chained to a pump.

Fucker tried to rip me off..

The telephone shot his thoughts to hell. Outside, the oversized bell on its pole ripped through the night and whipped the crouching figure's head up and around to face the sound. Inside, the phone on the desk sent a tingle up through the back of Linc's legs. His feet had gone to sleep.

... aw, shit. Now what the FUCK is this?

Two rings. Three. Linc stretched and groaned, took a swig of warm stale beer, jackknifed his body and grabbed for the phone. Julie, the sheriff's dispatcher. He automatically pitched the cigar butt. Julie was a lady. Right now Julie was concerned. She'd heard that Linc's was dark tonight. Was anything the matter?

"No ma'am, thank you. Just some trouble with Eddie."

Well, then, okay. Did he need any help?

"No thank you, ma'am. I'm about to go out and handle it now." He knew she never liked Eddie. Tonight, from her voice, at last he knew why. Eddie had got what she wanted. "But thanks again for callin'. It's nice to know that someone cares."

He'd always known she cared, she said. She'd talk to him tomorrow.

And just maybe we'll do more than talk. Yea-maybe, tomorrow . . .

But this was tonight. Out over his boots, out the window and past the pumps and their huddled figure, out the other side of the highway and twelve miles of desert, 'way out to the east, the sky was getting light again. The moon was coming up. Linc couldn't remember the last time he'd watched the moon come up. He sat in the dark and he waited. It seemed to be moving so fast. He didn't have to wait for long. The moon was full, and yellow and huge, and when it was all the way round and up in the sky Linc leaned his head back and howled. The silhouetted figure stirred. It turned and made a sound of its own. It sounded like Eddie was crying.

Cry, baby. Do it. Get used to it. You haven't even got started. Linc dropped his feet to the floor and stomped them to bring back some life. Slowly, joint popping, he stretched and he stood.

Getting old I guess. Too old to fuck around with punks. He picked up the beer and walked to the doorway. Leaning to one side against the jam, he stuffed his free hand in his pocket and stared at his station. Everything he'd worked for. Everything he owned. He swilled the brew. He stared at the shadows and the bright spots of moonlight. He stared at the pathetic lump of something staring back at him from down on its knees. Everything he owned.

Fucker tried to rip me off.

He finished the beer and crumpled the can.

I'm easy, but nobody fucks me. You pump, you pay less. But everybody pays.

The hand in his pocket seemed to be getting restless. The beer had gone straight to his bladder. A piss-hard was starting its way down his leg. He let his hand loose to do just what it wanted. It wanted to play with his dick. Linc stood, tall and square in the doorway, pulled his hand out of his pocket and started groping himself. The eyes in the shadows were shining. Partly with tears; partly with-what? Hope?

"I bet you think I'll fuck you, right? And this'll be all over?" Linc barely whispered, but he knew he'd been heard. The lump in the dark made no answer. Eddie just sniffled and hiccupped and belched. Tried to turn away, but he'd been chained too well.

Not a bad job, if I do say so myself. For as much of a hurry as I was in . . . Little shit looks right nice in those tow chains.

Linc's hands were working in constant motion: one pulling, prodding, caressing-the other mangling a lump that had once been a beer can. Linc's boots were planted. Linc's world was falling back together and his mind was about made up.

"Hey, ASShole," he yelled; "I'm talking to YOU!" The hand that had held the beer can was suddenly empty and falling through space, its lump of metal launched in a glittering moonlit arc that ended right at the top of the sniveling lump of flesh. The beer can hand knocked Eddie's cap off. He'd tried to duck and almost made it. Just as well. If he'd held still he'd have lost an eye. Linc just stared and groped himself. Everything he owned.

That fucking cap. How'd he keep it on, all through that fight? I tackled the fucker pretty hard. We wrestled. How'd he keep it on? Punk. Never did like the way he wore it, bill yanked down over his eyes.

"You gonna answer me, boy?" It didn't seem likely. Eddie made noises—not one of them words. He whimpered and whined and sniffled, but he didn't seem inclined to speak.

You're gonna talk to me, boy.

Linc stared back down at the Eddie-lump's eyes as his boots started taking him closer. His one hand still worked on the bulge in his crotch. Now the other unbuttoned his fly.

"You think I'm gonna fuck you, boy?" Still there came no answer. Linc was close enough to kick him now, but Eddie had nothing to say.

Damn straight I'm gonna fuck you, boy. You're gonna know you've been fucked. Just like you tried to fuck me.

Even his boots had a mind of their own. One landed a pointedtoed dig into the ribs that sent Eddie's breath into spasms. The other braced and planted to let its brother kick again. Linc waited. Fingered himself. Dragged his half-hard cock out into the moonlight.

Punk. I'm gonna fuck you, punk. But you're gonna pay me back first.

The lump of bills Eddie'd tried to hide still rode the hip of his jeans. Linc reached down and worked it out. Didn't bother to count it. He knew how much there was there. He fanned it in Eddie's face, made him look at it, thought about making him eat some of it. Slapped him with it a couple of times and stuffed it down his own pocket. The one where his hand had been before. The hand that went back to his dick and balls no w.

Where's the fucking cap?

Linc saw it. Reached down for it. Leaned over Eddie, his crotch in the boy's face, his big, smooth balls riding the lump's silent lips.

That's when the fucker bit him. Hard.

Linc caught his breath and saw stars, stood up and hauled back and kicked the boy's hands away from his crotch as far as the chains would let them go and sent that boot in for a kill. Eddie screamed when it landed. Tried to writhe away, but couldn't, for the chains. Tried to drop his hands again, tried to protect himself, tried to save his nuts, tried to breathe, tried not to throw up. Tried and failed.

"BITE MY NUTS," Linc screamed in the rhythm drummed out by his punishing boot; "I'll...TEACH...YOU...TO...BITE ...MY...NUTS...PUNK...YOU'RE...NOT GONNA... HAVE ANY...LEFT." Whatever Eddie'd had for lunch was making its way back up now. He screamed when he breathed. He puked in between. He writhed and he retched and he couldn't get away. He tried to hold his head down. Tried hard not to gag. Looked like he thought he was choking. Looked like he would die. Looked, for a while, like he just might be right.

Linc stopped and stared and sweated, chest heaving under his jacket, one hand cradling tooth-marked nut sac, the other still holding the cap. "Fucking smartass thieving PUNK," he yelled as he started in whipping the boy's face with his own filthy cap. Spit and sweat and vomit flew in drops every time Eddie tried to dodge. Tried, and failed.

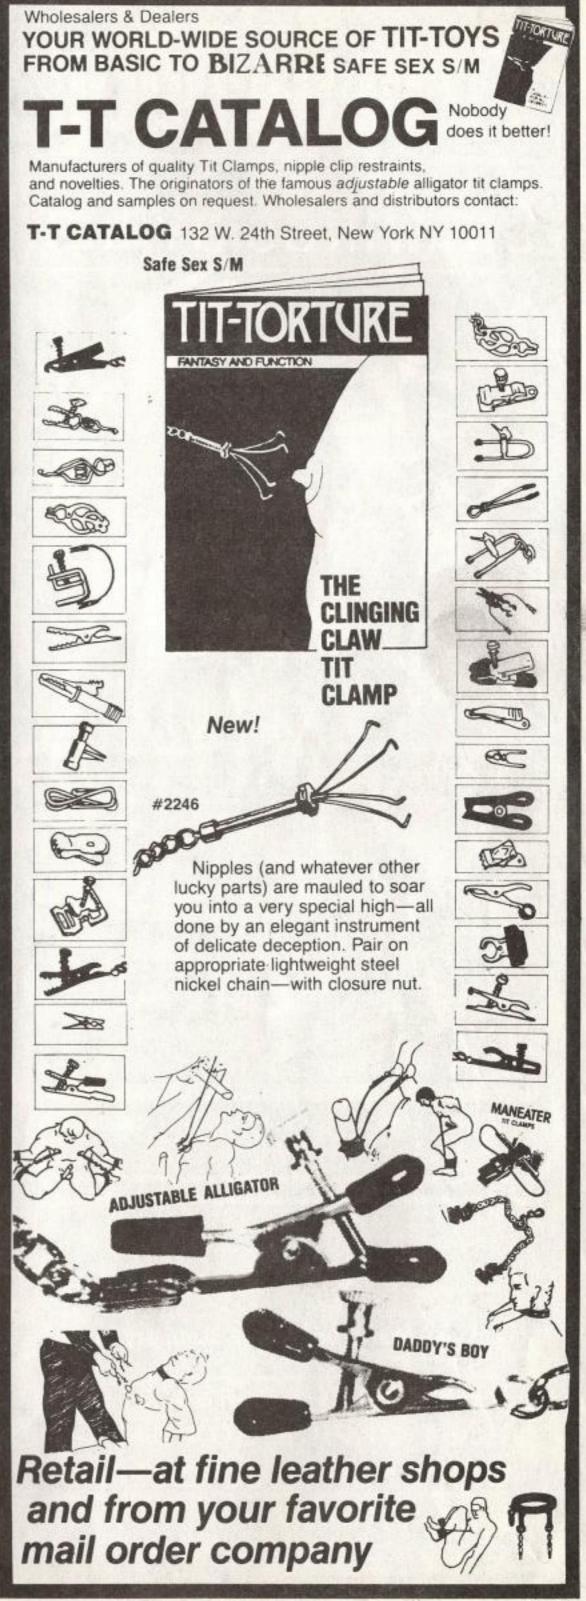

Linc slowed, and stopped, and stared again. Finally reached down to rub the boy's cap in his face and clean him up, after a fashion, before he planted it back up top of Eddie's head and pulled it down hard over his eyes.

"No, I never did like that, worn that way," he said to himself, or to no one. He stood back and thought for a while and groped in his crotch with both hands. When he stepped backed up and reached out, Eddie flinched.

"Let's try it like this." Linc yanked the bill up and back and flipped the cap around and slammed the whole thing back down home. Backward. "Just like a fucking fireman, boy. Now I can see your shifty worthless eyes." The kid's hair stuck out in odd places, curling and shining with grease and sweat. Linc grabbed a handful and shook. Held on tight and slapped the kid backhand. Eddie's eyes shone like an animal's. "Fucking punk," said Linc. "You'll talk."

Maybe the fucker's just thirsty. Puking his guts up, and all.

"You want something to drink, there, punk? You been out here a long time, now, and it's dry. Your mouth must taste like shit. How 'bout it, boy? You thirsty?" Still no response. No nod. No move to prove he'd heard.

Fucking punk. You'll talk.

Eddie crouched, getting back his breath and staring up straight at Linc's eyes, chained to his pump in the moonlight, aching and pained and feeling like death, wanting cool water more than anything else out of life, and his eyes wore a sharp look of simple defiance that made Linc's blood run cold. He didn't intend to say a word. He made that clear. Not to ask for water. Not to beg for mercy. Maybe not even to beg for death.

I wonder if I'll kill him. I wonder if it'll come to that.

"I guess you got balls—I'll grant you that. You're cocky, but you'll talk. I guarantee." Linc was relaxing all over again, everywhere but in his groin. He was in control here—but his need for relief was controlling him.

I'll wet your whistle, boy. You'll talk.

"Open up, punk. I'll give you something to drink." The shiver, the shake, the short sharp pain of pleasure at the start of the flow all hit Linc's nerves at once. His knees almost buckled, it all felt so fine. Everything he owned. He could afford to let go. "Open your mouth up. You're gonna swallow this."

The first of the stream shot hot down the tube in his dick, slicing it open, wetting down what had been dry all day long, slithering down to the tip, gathering under his foreskin in droplets before he slicked himself back, sputtering and dribbling and forcing his slit-tip open and gathering then in a hard solid stream that steamed in the warm evening air and landed flat on Eddie's face. The kid's eyes were open. Defiant. His mouth was clamped good and hard shut.

"PUNK. I TOLD you to OPEN YOUR MOUTH." Linc cut off his stream again, using his hand and his bladder control, and cracked another backhand slap across the kid's dumb face. "Just what the fuck is the matter with you? Don't you know what's going on?" Linc stared down. Eddie stared up. "If I want you to, you die. You know that?" Eddie's eyes kept staring. They never blinked. He never closed them. But the punk never opened his mouth.

"Well, you're not gonna die. Not yet anyway. But you are gonna open your mouth." One hand holding hard to his dickhead, Linc turned and searched for a tool. Any tool. What he found was on top of the oil can rack. What he found on the rack was just perfect. By the time he got back to stand in the kid's face he'd cradled it in both his hands, leaving his dick to dangle and dribble and slap back and forth on his thighs. An oil can spout. Dusty. Dry. It hadn't been used much since they'd started selling oil in bottles with little plastic caps.

Sometimes the old tools are the best.

Eddie's eyes flashed. Eddie wasn't stupid. Not really. Just proud.

You'll get over it, punk. You'll talk.

Linc cradled the spout in one hand, looking at the way it curved, matching it with the shape of Eddie's throat. He played with it, rubbing it over the kid's piss-soaked face, watching its dull flashes catch the moonlight.

"You got a choice kid," he said. "You can open up now and I drop this in easy," and Linc held the spout up, curve pointing down toward Eddie's belly, just the right shape for a throat, "or I shove it in backward. You got that, there, punk?" Linc turned the spout in his hand like a dagger, pointing the curve toward the back of Eddie's neck. For a second a flicker of something that looked like hope ran across the kid's eyes. Just like a flame, it died. The muscles in Eddie's jaw twitched as he clamped his teeth closed hard again. Linc sighed.

Have it your way, then. Do you always get just what you want? Holding the spout in his left hand, Linc grabbed the kid's hair with his right, started to snap Eddie's head back—and let go. Backed off. Gave the kid another chance. Watched the kid's eyes follow the nozzle as Linc pitched it, juggled it, played with it in both his hands.

"Another chance, kid. What'll it be?" Eddie's jaw was grinding. Eddie's eyes were cold. "Well, have it your way. One more time." I'm tired of fucking around with you.

The spout landed this time in his right hand. Linc looked at it, stroked it, placed it just the way he wanted it. Hefted it. Liked its feel. It might just slice out through the back of the punk's neck. Too fucking bad. It had been his choice. Linc watched his eyes and grabbed his hair up through his cap and hauled one boot back and slammed it up and in at exactly the spot where the kid's rib cage ended and watched, amazed, as the kid almost took it and started to haul back to kick again but didn't, didn't have to: Eddie's eyes and his mouth bulged and finally those eyes slid shut and that mouth flew open and Linc stuffed the spout in and down. The boy gasped and gagged and tried to scream. He damn sure couldn't breath. Too bad.

That's just too fucking bad.

Eddie's eyes opened and stared up at Linc and looked a whole lot less defiant. Linc smiled. Linc held on tight to his handful of hair, but he let go the metal spout and grabbed hold his own. He'd gone pretty limp. He still had to piss. Plenty. He skinned himself back one more time.

"I told you to open your mouth up, punk. Now you drink this." And once again the pleasure flow started and once again Linc had control and once again the stream was hard and steaming. This time he aimed it and shot it down straight, past the spike that had punctured cans, through the tube that had carried their oil, down through the tube that had puked Eddie's guts up and into the belly that heaved and roiled and had just now been empty and dry.

"See there, punk? You don't even have to swallow. I'm doing everything for you. Just like I always have. Drink it, fucker. He pissed hard-relaxed-pushed again. "Drink me down." He played with his skin, rubbing it back down the tip to splatter his flow, thumbing it back up past the crown until his wet head gleamed in the moonlight. "Drink it. Take it. Take it all, baby. Don't you spill a drop." He changed his aim and laughed. Sprayed Eddie's face, his hair, his neck and chest down inside the kid's jacket. "Don't spill none. And don't you throw this up."

The kid was choking, gagging, heaving. Maybe turning blue.

The light was too dim to tell.

Feel like you're dyin' now, don't you, baby? Tough shit. I'm not done with you yet.

There was more to be let loose, but Linc was getting bored. He clamped the stream off slowly. He wanted the kid to think he was empty. If the kid could think at all. Linc rubbed his thumb in lazy circles over his glistening dickhead. He was starting again to get hard. Eddie's eyes had rolled back in his head. The flow of Linc's urine had stopped. His dick was hard. He let go the kid's hair and reached down with both hands to pry his jaw open wide and pull the funnel out.

The wail of Eddie's long-lost breath was sickening. Rasping, desperate not close to enough: A tornado through a keyhole. Linc pitched the oil spout into the dust. He wanted a cigar, but thought better of lighting one next to his pumps. Everything he owned. He pulled one out anyway, chomping it cold, and stared down across it at the heaving, gasping lump at his feet.

Eddie had never moved his head. His chin still jutted toward the sky; his throat still lay smooth. Exposed. Linc's cock was hard and throbbing now. Waiting to be taken care of. Linc could remember the ripples that throat had made, taking his meat to the hairs. Now Linc's dick was drooling.

You always could suck dick there, kid.

He slapped the kid's upturned face once. Twice. In time with the howling breaths. Forehand. Backhand. Eventually, with his cock. The shaft slapped against his own piss. The impact, hard and swift, felt fine. He stopped to rub himself down the smooth hard line of the kid's jaw, to yank his skin all the way back and rub the glans up through the hair he'd held tight in his fist, to let his nuts fall back on the kid's lips. One gasping howl whistled down past his sac. The next cut itself off short. Linc's nuts had fallen right and been sucked down into the kid's mouth and almost down his throat. Linc moved a warning boot back to his crotch. Eddie's eyes opened and cleared. Eddie stared up. Linc stared down. Linc took hold of the kid's ears and rubbed his thumbs across the kid's eyes.

I always did think you were beautiful.

"Don't even think of biting me again." One snap would do it. One hard clamp and Linc would sing soprano. Linc knew it. Eddie knew it. Eddie's eyes were wild. Thinking of what, Linc couldn't tell. Linc just stood and waited. Eddie started to heave for another breath. Linc waited, breathed, understood the bargain in a sudden flash. Everything he owned.

You bite them, you die. Bite 'em off, you choke on them. I'll stuff them down your throat. You choose. I own you, baby. I own your fucking soul.

Eddie's jaw moved slowly. Eddie's eyes blinked and cleared. Eddie sheathed his teeth and sucked.

Linc stood and let the kid breathe.

The howling sound was softer now. Less frenzied. Calmer. Almost tamed. Almost. Never completely. Linc stood back and watched the kid. Eddie watched him back. There was fire in his eyes. The defiance was gone. Linc could see he understood. Everything he owned. He gave the kid more time. Stroked his meat, kept himself hard, chomped on his unlit cigar. All the time he watched Eddie's eyes. Watched as they settled and started to close. Watched as his tongue wet his lips. Kept watching while Eddie changed his body the way he'd changed his mind. The shoulders slumped, then squared. The hands resigned themselves to their bondage and found an attitude of peace. The head found a place to sit, finally, that said that the kid was ready.

For now. For how long? I guess it doesn't matter. Someday he'll kill me. Someday. Not tonight.

Linc moved forward again. Eddie opened his mouth. His eyes were quiet. He didn't speak. His tongue unrolled and waited. Linc skinned himself back and laid his drooling dick down home. Eddie let his lips fall shut. He sucked Linc's dick like the first time again. Carefully. Slowly. Looking for all the right ways. He breathed through his mouth, around the sides. He breathed through his nose and thrusted and bobbed. Linc moved in, forward and down. Eddie opened wider. Linc dropped his hands and flipped the kid's cap off, tilted his head back and cradled and shoved.

You always could suck dick. Make me feel good, baby.

Eddie strained upward to meet each new thrust. With gentle intensity, Linc pushed down hard. Slide, slip, stroke, shove. Pull back and do it over. Eddie followed his lead. Eddie gave him what he needed. Eddie sucked him off.

When Linc came he grunted and held the kid's head pressed hard in the funk of his crotch. Each shot down his piss-widened tube and shot out and down with a pleasure he'd never known before. Right to the kid's throat. Straight to his belly. Linc was going to fill him up. Eddie worked his throat, following every shot as it started up somewhere on top of his chin, deep inside his master's flesh, helping to push it along with his tongue and finally squeezing it out and down. He held his breath. He had no choice. When Linc's hands relaxed on the back of his head, he pressed his face into Linc's crotch on his own. Eddie sucked him dry.

Linc groaned and backed and let him breathe, shuddering with the last drops as they oozed out and onto his tongue. Eddie gasped and tried to suck again. Linc held himself up out of reach. Eddie tried to nurse once more. Silently, he pleaded. Linc just backed away.

Wait.

Eddie slowed and settled and waited. Linc stood still and watched.

I always did think you were beautiful.

Everything he owned.

When the kid had finally controlled his hunger, Linc stepped close in again and dropped his limp and trusting cock back on Eddie's lips. The tip of his foreskin was puckered, like a kiss. Eddie ran his tongue up into it. Followed his tongue with his lips. Worked his way back up the shaft to bury himself once again at its

The head of Linc's soft dick sat quietly on the back of Eddie's tongue when the first drops trickled out. Eddie groaned and waited. Suddenly, Linc withdrew again. Eddie's eyes went wild. Eddie's mouth began to flap. Eddie's raw throat croaked.

You'll talk.

Eddie rasped and mumbled. Linc held his water and waited.

"Please," rasped Eddie. He sounded like death. The sweetest sound that Linc had ever heard.

"Please," said Eddie, stronger now. Linc watched him watching him, waiting.

"Please," cried Eddie. Desperate. Edgy. "Please, Linc, man. Come on."

"Please what?" Linc whispered.

I told you you'd talk.

"Please, man, just . . . please. Take me again." Eddie pleading.

"Please WHAT?" Linc asked again, louder now.

You'll not only talk, you'll say it right.

"Please, shit, I don't know. Please piss in my mouth." Eddie pleading and confused. Nicer still. Linc was in control again. Everything he owned.

"Please WHAT?" Linc yelled, and cracked the night.

You know what I want. And I'll get it. Punk.

"PLEASE, SIR, I WANT TO BE YOURS." Eddie was crying. Linc fucked his mouth. Slid his dick, half-hard, back home, opened the floodgates and pumped his boy full.

Fill 'er up? Fine, sir. Check your oil, too? Full service . . .

Linc pissed and Eddie swallowed. Linc gave and Eddie took. Linc ordered; Eddie obeyed. Just the way it should be.

For now.

Finally Linc dried up for good. Pulled himself out and stuffed himself away. Back in his pants, still dripping. Eddie belched.

"Forgive me, Sir? I'm sorry."

"You sure as shit are."

Eddie said nothing. He wouldn't, they both knew, until he was told to. Linc finished buttoning his pants and turned away. Reached for the water hose. Yanked it up out of the island. Turned it on Eddie's face and turned it on. Eddie's eyes said, "Thank You, Sir." Eddie's mouth just swallowed. Eddie was soaked by the time he was done. Linc hosed him all the way down. When Linc dropped the hose Eddie thanked him with words. Linc made no answer at all.

Eddie settled, resigning himself to a night being chained to his pump. He wondered if he was lucky. Sometimes it was hard to tell.

Linc turned again and strode back to his office, stomping the water off the side of his boots and fishing in his pockets for a lighter. He didn't look at the kid again until he was back in his chair, his boots on his desk, leaning back with his lit cigar in one hand and his telephone in the other. He thought about Julie. She might be a lady, but he was a man.

She'll have to get used to cigars.

He looked out at the boy, settling in for the night. How long before he tried again? It didn't matter. He would. And when he won it would be time for Linc to let go . . . of everything he owned. Until then he had other plans.

Maybe I'll let you watch me, boy. Tie you up where she can't see you and make you watch me fuck her. I wonder what you'd think of that. And maybe someday you can fuck her yourself. Maybe. If you win.

He dialed the number. She answered, second ring. She always had been good that way.

"I wanted to thank you for calling, again-and ask if you'd like to go dancing."

She'd love it. Arrangements were made. Another call rang on the switchboard; Julie had to go.

Linc hung up. His dick was hard. He pulled it out and stroked it, leaning back, fully lit by moonlight and staring out his window at everything he owned.

BLINDMAN'S BLUFF HURTS TOO MUCH

Last month, I suggested that one-handed reading isn't very helpful to those of you who want some clues about how to put together some sort of S/M relationship for yourselves. This month, I am here to tell that there is a bountiful store-house chock full of clues just waiting for you. It's in a place where you may not have thought to look—inside yourself.

Therapists would have to do a lot less work repairing partnerships that have gone out of kilter, if people would do their "homework" first before they get involved. This is especially true in S/M relationships, because, I believe, they are more complex dynamically that nonS/M relationships. In short, I am suggesting that relationships will often run more smoothly if they have been prepared for.

A helpful first step is to get honest about what you really want, from both the kinky and nonkinky aspects of your involvements. In addition to all the other considerations that go with non-S/M relationships (Is he/she attractive? Do they need to be? etc.), there are the S/M issues. Ask yourself some questions:

To what degree do you need to shape your life around the exploration of your sexuality? Some will want lover-type relationships with varying degrees of S/M stuff whenever both are horny. These are relationships with S/M in them.

Others will prefer to live lives with S/M as the relationship. Consider life in a cage, if you will. Or what about being a full-time Master with various sorts of slaves at your beck and call? Such full-time involvements are indeed possible, but developing them in the real world can be a slow and difficult process.

At the other end of the spectrum are those who want S/M relationships only in fantasy and have no thought of actualizing their desires. The point is there are lots of ways to weave S/M into your relationships, but the shape of the relationships must emerge from honest self-examination.

The subject of love in an S/M relationship is so complex that I will devote an entire column to it later. For now, consider at least whether or not you need to love, or be loved by, your S/ M counterpart in order to have a satisfying relationship. Some people don't want a kinky lover and prefer to get their S/M needs met outside their primary or romantic involvements. The opposite works for others. Their S/M relationship is primary and there are lovers or affairs of the heart "outside," so to speak.

What do you need? John's offering of his submission and suffering to a Top is an "I love you" message in and of itself. He will not suffer at the hand of any man for whom he cannot feel love. Richard, a sadist, can't hurt anyone he does love. His equally sadistic friend, Tom, believes that he wastes himself when he hurts those for whom he feels nothing romantic. Clearly, there are many angles to this issue, and lots of opportunities for a mismatch if one is not scrupulously honest first with oneself.

There is in all of this a presumption of experience-not even necessarily a lot, but some is essential. It's hard to know how you really feel about Paris until you go there yourself. You can form an opinion based on what you read, see in films and photos or hear in the stories of friends who have been there. S/M relationships as they really operate are almost never filmed, photographed or written about. Increasingly, however, people are starting to talk about them some, and this can help supplement your own experience in deciding what sort of configuration might be right for you next.

It is equally useful to think about the distinctions between words like "slave," "masochist" and "submissive" or "Master," "sadist" and "dominant" as they may apply to yourself. I don't mean to suggest that these words are pigeonholes into which you should place yourself, but rather that they are words that describe evolving and dynamic processes that can give shape to your thinking about your sexuality and where you might want to go with it.

A person's tastes often evolve during his erotic lifetime. What may have been true for him two years ago may have changed by now. Research has suggested that when it comes to exotic sexualities, most people "go both ways." That is to say they switch to think about switching polarities from time to time between their dominant and submissive selves. I'll refer to these people as "switches."

For functional switches, i.e. those who move back and forth between Top and bottom comfortably on their own timetables, the act of switching can be caused by several things. Some switch because they like to. Others do so because they want access to partners irrespective of the other person's preference. Others switch as an act of love to satisfy a lover's need. Whatever the reason, check yourself out. Do you switch? Why? With the same partner? In the same scene? Will you want a relationship with another switch? Will you only switch outside a relationship? Take notes on yourself. Successful relationships result from hard work. Doing some work yourself will help with the relationship you're in, or prepare you for the one you want.

What about your real feelings concerning S/M and drugs and alcohol? How do they affect your ability to play both safely and wisely? Will you rule out relationship candidates if their thinking about drugs is much different from your own?

Is public or semipublic playing something you like a lot or not at all? Do you socialize in the S/M world? Do you need your partner to do so as well? Where do you stand with regard to marks on the body, both temporary and permanent? The range of possibilities is wide here, from rope and whip marks, shaving, bodypainting and even sunburn on the temporary side to tattoos, piercing, scarification and branding on the permanent. Are these marks trophies or blemishes in your eyes?

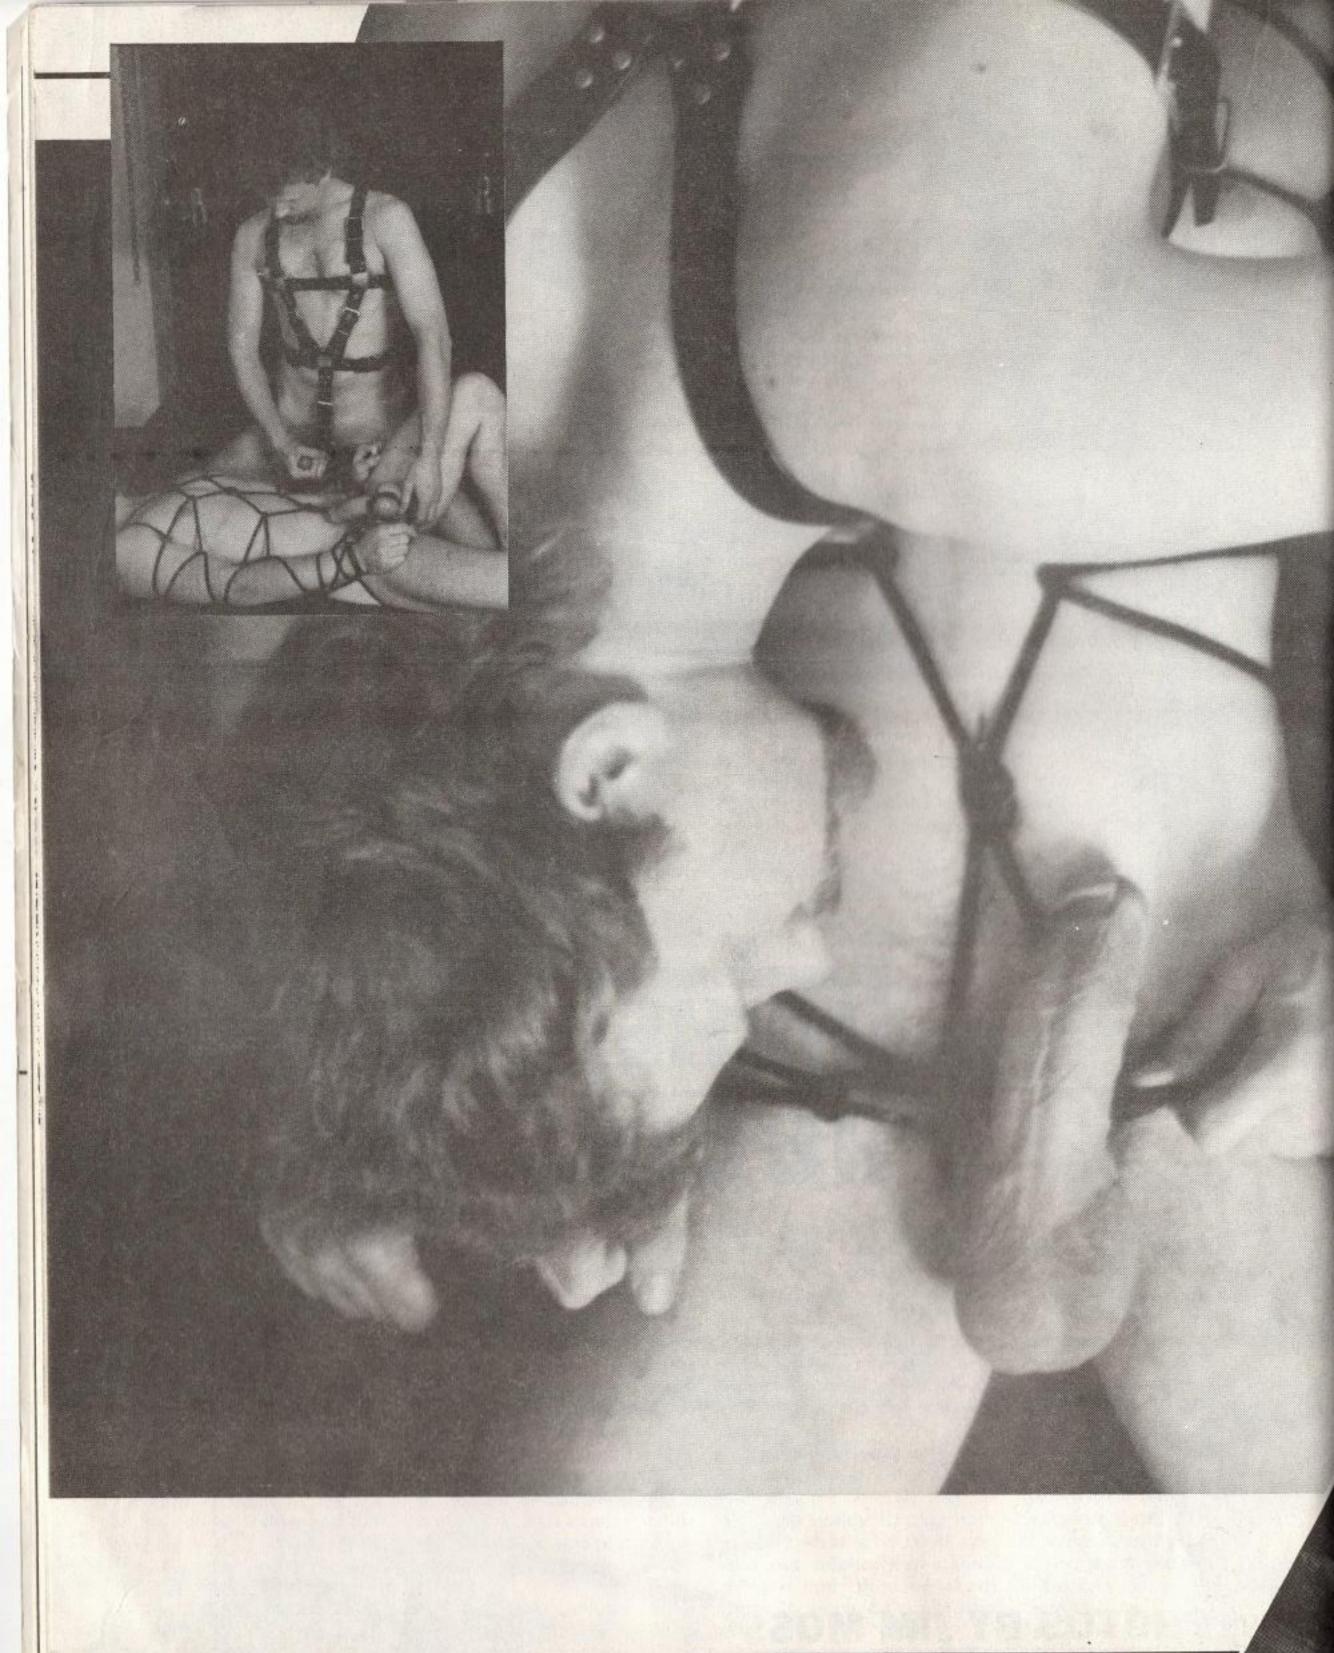

What about being involved with more than one person at a time, either in a scene or perhaps as a member of a family of three or four? Do you want to have a stable of slaves or a harem of submissives? Do you dream of being owned by a group of Masters? Do you want to make these fantasies into realities, or are you content to pull them out in horny moments? Recently, I have become aware of no fewer than seven S/M relationships involving three or more persons. None were similar to any other in either structure or function.

Although possibilities abound, any relationship necessarily begins with individuals. The more information you have about yourself, the better equipped you are to have a relationship with yourself first and then others. Getting to know your sexuality is tough enough when it's not an unusual one. It's harder when it's exotic, and there's no support from any majority or minority social institutions to assist you in your self-examina-

But look inward we must. The blindman's bluff approach to relationships just doesn't work very well. In that game, you make your choice of partners with a blindfold on, i.e. you don't look at him to see who he is, and you don't look at yourself to see who you are. Who can be surprised at the results?

SO WHO EVER CALLED CASTRO A TIGHT-ASS?

"The Foreign Broadcast Information Service, a CIA-sponsored monitor of the world press, reports that Cuba's President Fidel Castro recently underwent surgery for 'flaccidity of the levator ana.' In lay terms it means his rectum was too relaxed. FBIS cites Egyptian press reports that the successful operation was performed by Cairo surgeon Ahmad Shafiq, who claims to have pioneered the treatment of the disorder in 1980.

"It is not known what caused the Maximum Leader's posterior discomfort, but a Western medical source says it is a condition usually found in homosexual men, especially those who use amyl nitrite, or 'poppers.' The gas is inhaled during lovemaking to relax the anal muscles."

The above is quoted from the Sept. 14, 1987 Insight, a publication of The Washington Times. A mooney paper quoting a CIA news service! We know how accurate the "Western medical source" is and can guess at the rest.

SOM HISTORY: PARTLY BIZARRO

We know of at least two books currently in preparation on the history of gay life in San Francisco's Folsom, or "South of Market" area. The following is a tidbit that might be of interest to the authors. It was sent in by a NYC subscriber who found it in a theatrical review in the Boston Gay Community News, not usually considered a source for SOM history items. The author, Michael Bronski, is recounting some of the most theatrical moments in his experience:

"I was standing in a leather bar, The Black and Blue, on a San Francisco vacation eight years ago. The room was filled with attractive men dressed to the tits in leather, handcuffs and mean attitude. Above the room was a huge motorcycle suspended by chains and covered with little twinkly Christmas lights. At some time, late in the evening, the lights in the bar were lowered and the tiny white lights on the bike were turned on. The disco stopped and the loudspeakers began to play-very loudly-the "Gloria" from Beethoven's Missa Solemnis. As the bar became dark and the small lights began to twinkle against the polished chrome, the men all became silent. They remained so after the music ended and only resumed talking after the bar lights slowly came back up. I don't know what it meant-it was partly a religious feeling, partly sexual, partly mystical, and partly bizarro-but it was great theater."

WHIPS & CHAINS— BOAS & PYTHONS

From a newspaper clipping:

The SPCA on 16th Street in San Francisco has all kinds of animals in its care which are taken in for all kinds of reasons. This may be the weirdest case: A boa constrictor is currently in residence after being confiscated from a couple of sadomasochists, who were using it as a whip.

I wonder if anyone asked the snake if it were a consenting adult before hauling it off to the pound.

NEO-NAZI CRUCIFIXION

In early August, Gregory Withrow, a 26-year-old man who had recently severed ties with the Ku Klux Klan and neo-Nazis, was found in a Sacramento, California, K-Mart shopping plaza with his hands nailed to a board. The board had been placed behind his arms and shoulders and his wrists were tied to it. Then his hands had been attached with an eight-penny nail through each palm. The police spokesman was also quoted as saying that someone had slashed him between the throat and collar bones, supposedly with a straight razor.

Withrow was taken to the hospital, where he was treated and released. He refused to press charges or even make a statement. UPI did not indicate how he was dressed or undressed, or if he kept the board and nails as souvenirs.

A DISCIPLINARY STRIP

A Weston, Connecticut high school principal was cheered by the student body after returning from a seven-week suspension. It seems a 17-year-old male student pulled down the pants of a 16-year-old girl in the school's coed weightlifting room. As his punishment the boy was made to undress in front of the principal in a locked room. The school board did not like this (apparently they had not been invited to watch), but the student body of 540 gave the principal full support; nearly 500 of them signed a petition demanding his reinstatement. They should have added a clause specifying that the next disciplinary strip must be conducted on stage in front of the entire student body, then the other 40 probably would have signed too.

EYE-CATCHING HEADLINES Hand Couldn't Plug Hole in Acting Career

With a teaser like that, you're caught, right? Actually, San Francisco Examiner columnist Steve Rubenstein was talking about his tryout for the role of "Thing" in a local production based upon the '60s TV show "The Addams Family." For those who don't remember, "Thing" is a hand that rises out of a box on the Addams family's living room table. He didn't get the part, but he sure knows what will attract the attention of his reading audience.

SHITTY NAME

Officials of the Santa Clara County Area Transit spent millions on a new light-rail transit system and thousands more to come up with a jazzy name. SCAT was their choice. They of course were thinking of the "to move fast" definition of the word. But others have their own idea of what the acronym stands for. The jokes circulating are definitely not conducive to the image the officials were trying to convey. One official probably summed up the problem accurately: "The name probably isn't that important. What people ultimately call it will probably depend on whether it runs on time."

Runs?

ORGANS IN BONDAGE

A writer and photographer who contributes frequently to our various magazines happens to be an RN in real life. He thinks that the bound-up lungs on this magazine cover look more like another set of organs. Whatever could he be thinking of?!

For nearly ten years, DungeonMaster has been serving as the "technical and professional" journal for men into men and S/M.

Soon there will be a new journal that will equally serve men and women, gay/lesbian, straight and bisexual-The Sandmutopia Guardian. The first several issues will mainly present material from early DungeonMasters, revised to incorporate considerations for female anatomy, lesbian and heterosexual S/M-D/S relationships, and AIDS-aware safe sex practices. Carol Truscott, long-time columnist in the Society of Janus' Growing Pains, will use her experience and contacts with lesbians and bi- and heterosexual men and women to edit the new publication.

The Guardian will be the place for men and women into S/M to communicate. It will feature articles on S/M safety; S/M philosophy and psychology; buying and building S/M equipment and supplies; techniques for various kinds of equipment and scenes; news and information on S/M activities; personal ads . . . and much, much more. It will not have fantasy fiction. As in DungeonMaster, the writing will be as erotic and stimulating as possible while promoting safe, sane and consensual S/M activity.

RED JOEKS HUNG BUTHE CHIMANIEY UUB ETER CARE

Paul came over to the bed and kissed him. "Your tree, silly. It's Christmas. You didn't think we'd forget, did you?"

Danny joined Paul by the bed and squeezed Chuck's hand. "Okay, guys, let's get organized. Carl, you and I will get the sofa made up in the other room so Chuck can supervise, and Paul, you can get Chuck ready to come in. Then we decorate!"

The lights on the tree blurred as Chuck looked at them with tears in his eyes. The apartment looked truly festive. All the old ornaments had been brought down from storage and been placed on the tree just as in years past. The chrome cock and balls made from two nuts and a bolt with steel-wool pubic hair caused lots of comments, as did the leather cock-ring chains. The high point, though, was the little teddy bear dressed in full leather, sitting on a motorcycle, that went on top of the tree.

"You guys are really great. I can't thank you enough."

"Shit, man. What are friends for if they can't cheer up a buddy. God knows you've helped us out enough." Paul laughed. "Can you imagine if that bear could talk, the trouble we'd all be in? Fuck, we'd all be dead." There was an uncomfortable silence for a minute. "Ah, where's the centerpiece for the table?"

Carl jumped up, "It's in the car. I'll get it." Chuck felt the cold air blow across the room as the door banged shut. A chill ran down his spine. The excitement of the day made him realize how weak he was. He felt another chill as Carl returned.

"Ta da! La creme de la creme." Carl knelt down beside the sofa for Chuck's approval. It was a green molded Jello ring with twinkle lights embedded so when it was plugged in it glowed. "Now I ask you, Mary, isn't that the prettiest thing you ever saw?"

Chuck laughed so hard he started coughing. When he regained his composure he just shook his head. "They are right you know. It does take a fairy to make something pretty."

The three cleaned up the mess as Chuck watched. When they finished they came back over to the sofa. "Want to go back into your bed now?"

"No. I want to stay out here. You did such a good job I don't want it to go to waste. Its's all so pretty. Besides, not sure how many . . ." Chuck's voice trailed off.

Danny stood up, "Well, Tom's going to be over around sixish with your supper and we'll all be back tomorrow about noon to share Christmas dinner with you. Anything you want before we go?"

"Just another log on the fire."

Danny repositioned Chuck's pillow and then have him a hug. "You got it, guy."

Chuck heard Carl's voice as the door closed "Don we now our gay apparel. Fa la la . . ."

He smiled as he pulled the blanket up higher around his neck. The apartment looked the way it used to. Even the carols on the radio were perfect. Everything was perfect, except. "Damn. How could I have forgotten. It's always been there for Christmas." He pulled himself up to a sitting position. He looked around the room wondering where he had put it.

He worked his way from one piece of furniture to the next until he reached the chest of drawers. "Thank God it's here." When he reached the fireplace his legs were shaking from the effort, but it had been worth it. He was soaking wet from sweat when he collapsed back onto the sofa. A smile played on his lips as he went to sleep thinking of the red jockstrap hanging from the mantel.

When Chuck awoke the room was dark except for the glow from the tree lights. He heard carols playing on the radio and noticed his dinner tray setting beside the sofa. The clock said eleven fifty-five. "Damn." That trip to the dresser really took it out of me. He looked at the tray again. I didn't even hear Tom come in with my supper. Chuck tried to push himself up higher on the pillow; but didn't have the strength. The fire had gone out and the room had taken on a chill. He remembered how in the past he had enjoyed a cool room and fucking in front of a blazing fire. But now there wasn't enough meat left on his bones for insulation and the cold was just another irritation.

There was a crackling sound and the flames in the hearth began to flicker, and within seconds the logs were again burning brightly. He looked at the burning logs with a certain amount of curiosity but couldn't manage much more. Even when he noticed the extremely humpy man standing by the fireplace wearing the red jock, he reacted only by glancing back toward the now empty nail where it had hung.

"Merry Christmas, Chuck." Chuck tried to speak but all that came out was a cough. "Maybe some juice will help." The man crossed the room and knelt beside the sofa. "Here, let me help you up on that pillow some." Chuck felt himself being lifted as easily as a child moves a toy. "Is that better? Here now, have a sip of this."

As Chuck drank he looked at the person for the first time. The man kneeling beside the sofa was everything Chuck had always liked in his men. More masculine than pretty. Black, curly hair, long eye lashes, full lips. Perfection on the hoof, as he was fond of saying.

The glass being removed from his hands startled him since he hadn't noticed the man reaching for it. "Did that help some? See if you can speak easier now."

"Thank you." Chuck smiled, "Who are you?" *

"My name is Phil."

"I like the name Phil."

"I know."

"What are you doing here?"

"I'm a gift for you."

Chuck tried to laugh, but it came out more like a cough again.

"Want some more juice?"

Chuck shook his head. "This is a bad joke. Who sent you?"

Phil stood up, cupped his hand over his well-filled red pouch and smiled at Chuck. "Santa Claus, who else."

Chuck stared up at the guy standing there. He couldn't believe his eyes. If all the men that he had ever fantasized over were combined into one person, it would be Phil. Even down to the trailing hair pattern that disappeared under the wide band of the red jock. "Well, whoever sent you, it was a nice thought, but I can't."

"Why? Don't I please you?"

"You look better than the red bicycle I got for Christmas when I was twelve; and that was the most beautiful thing I had ever seen." Chuck smiled. "No it's not that. I'm just too sick even if it was possible."

"But it is possible."

Chuck shook his head. "Someone is playing a bad joke on both of us. Even I if was strong enough we couldn't. I have . . ."

Phil put his finger on Chuck's lips and halted his words. "You haven't been listening to me." He smiled and kissed Chuck on the mouth. "I said tonight it's possible. Now do as I say." Chuck started to speak but then didn't. "Remember, it's midnight on Christmas Eve. It's a time when anything can happen. It is possible."

Chuck watched as his hand was raised to Phil's mouth and each fingertip was kissed. He felt uneasy. It had been so long since he had felt the intimate warmth of another man.

"Why don't we move to the rug in front of the fireplace?"

Chuck watched as Phil crossed the room and then stretched out in front of the hearth. His firm white ass and hot body brought back a flood of memories, of the many other men that had stretched out on that same spot.

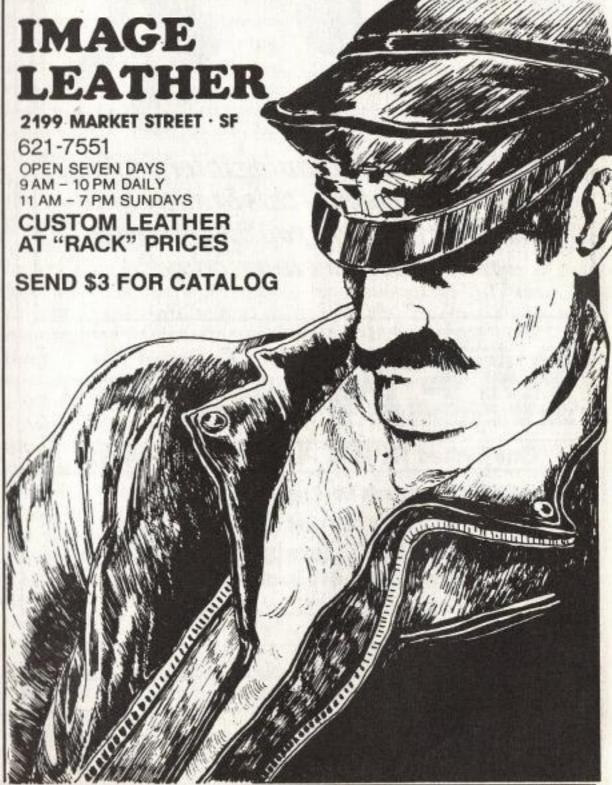

"So what are you waiting for? Get your ass over here and open your present." Phil smiled as he spoke.

Chuck was surprised as he threw back the blankets. There was no longer the weightiness that had been there. He no longer felt as weak. Even the walk across the room wasn't an effort. Chuck let his fingers brush Phil's inner thigh as he knelt down. He allowed his fingers to trail over the beautiful body in front of him. He followed the hair pattern across the wide chest; on down over the muscular stomach; pausing only when he reached the wide red elastic band.

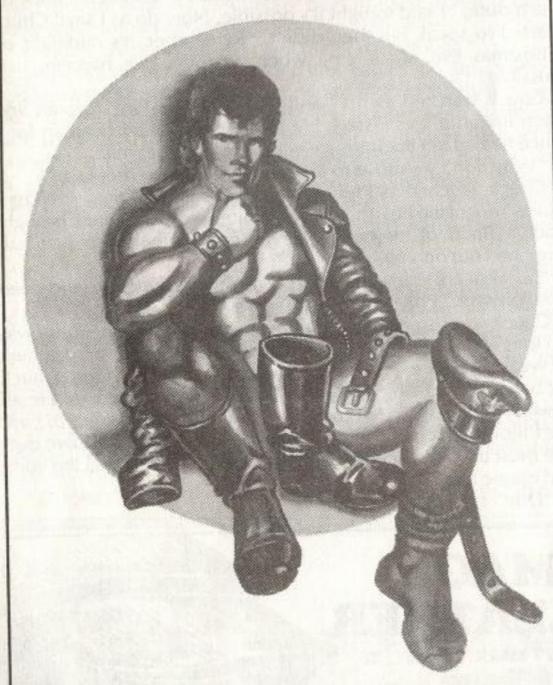

"Don't stop there, go for it."

Chuck slid his fingers under the band continuing through the silky pubic hair until he had reached Phil's private area. "Are you sure you know what you're doing?"

Phil reached up, pulling Chuck down onto his chest and kissed him deeply. Chuck felt the man's warmth and strength flowing into him.

"That felt great."

Phil kissed him on the nose. "If that felt great, wait until you get to the good parts. Now why don't you get undressed?"

Chuck stood up and stripped out of the sweat suit he was wearing. As the waistband cleared Chuck's crotch, and before it hit his ankles, Phil started his attack. It had been so long since Chuck felt that incredible warmth of a hot mouth. His legs shook as he felt Phil's hand on his ass urging him forward. Chuck ran his fingers through the curly black hair in front of him before tightening his grip and joining the assault.

The beginning of his climax was so violent he couldn't believe it himself. The months of abstinence culminated at that point. Chuck threw his head back and gritted his teeth, moaning in ecstasy as he dropped to the floor.

They held each other close until Chuck could catch his breath. Phil spoke first. "Not bad for being out of practice. Now let's see what else you remember how to do."

Chuck couldn't believe how much strength he had. Just earlier, crossing the room was enough to exhaust him. But now, it was like old times; he was ready for more.

With the tip of his tongue, Chuck drew lewd and lascivious designs on Phil's firm chest, in the space between the now erect nipples. Before moving on, he had the man under him quivering with excitement. Chuck turned his head and smiled at Phil, "I'm remembering more."

His mouth hungrily covered the salty-sweet fabric of the red jock, chewing and savoring the memory filled taste. The more Phil moaned, the harder Chuck chewed. He had forgotten how good that sound was. The sound of pure animalistic sex from one man pleasing another.

One of Phil's jewels had slipped out from the side of the jock. Chuck sucked it into his mouth like a piece of Christmas candy, brutalizing it with his tongue.

Phil raised his hips up off the floor to remove the jock, but Chuck pinned his wrists to the floor without removing the now tender testicle from his mouth.

When Chuck did release Phil's nut, he could hear a gasp as Phil relaxed, but it didn't last long. A quick intake of air quickly followed as Chuck again attacked the mesh-covered mound. Phil's legs pulled up as Chuck's fingers roamed.

There was no part of the sex acts that Chuck hadn't enjoyed. But making love to a hot man's ass was way up on his list of favorites.

Chuck slid his arms around Phil's waist; lifting and pulling him closer. Chuck smiled to himself as he looked down at the beautiful sight. He wet his finger and explored the body before him like a child with a new toy that he had just opened. Chuck lowered his head and kissed the two firm cheeks with sloppy wet kisses, working his way closer toward the center.

He felt Phil's body go rigid with the dual attack to his private areas. Chuck's fingers kneaded the extremely full pouch as he continued his oral foraging. Chuck was driven by the manly musky odor as it filled his total being. He gasped for air as he reached deeper and deeper.

They reached the peak together and rode it through to its climax, before collapsing into each other's arms.

The fire burned brightly as Chuck nuzzled into Phil's neck. "You were right. It was possible. You're one hell of a gift."

Phil laughed, "Merry Christmas, guy."

Chuck raised up on one elbow. "Will I see you again?"
Phil smiled and kissed Chuck. "There's always New Year's Eve.
Just hang up the red jockstrap."

"Really?"

"Nothing's possible, unless you try."

MARCHING TO A DIFFERENT DRUMMER

A sight to behold: hundreds of folks decked out in their kinkiest finery met together in a building which was grand enough to be a Czar's palace. If the Bolsheviks had been less puritanical and more imaginative, this might have been the scene in St. Petersburg after the October Revolution. In fact, the date was October 10, 1987, and the Department of Commerce building on Constitution Avenue in Washington, D.C., was emblazoned with a large banner reading "S/M & LEATHER CONFERENCE." The script consisted of grey chain links, and we were determined to form a chain of solidarity among ourselves, while also breaking the chains of the closet. We had gathered in Washington not only to play with erotic power, but also to challenge political power; not only to come out again as gay people in society, but also as leatherfolk in the lesbian and gay movement.

So there we were amid the marble columns and chandeliers, in our studded jocks and dog collars, in our Mohawk hair cuts and zebra-striped leotards-definitely not the uniforms of business and bureaucracy as usual. One thing is certain: some government workers had changed from their pin-stripes into their harnesses to join us, daring all. Who knows what secret friend in the bureaucracy allowed such a space to be used for such a conference—and who knows what political enemies may yet emerge to make a stink about queers dishonoring government property?

The extended family of fetishists enjoyed the largest reunion of this kind ever held in the United States. André "I Love A Man In Uniform" Fiset was present, promoting a new calendar in which he poses in loincloths amid Greek ruins quite petite, but no less sexy, in person. Tony DeBlase introduced me to Scott Answer, a Zeus model whom I had first seen in Drummer 102 with a padlocked cock. Only an attack of shyness prevented me from roping him up in a tidy package and mailing him first class to my home. Judy Tallwing McCarthy—an Apache, a grandmother, a progressive activist, and the first International Ms. Leather-joined Gayle Rubin, Eric Rofes, Jim Levin, and myself for a panel discussion on sex, censorship, and politics. I took great (some might say sadistic) pleasure in giving Attorney General and censor-in-chief Edwin Meese the tongue lashing he so miserably deserves. Unfortunately, I had to leave the conference after this panel, and so missed crossing paths with Chuck Renslow and other leatherfolk, but it seems from all reports that this conference has sown many seeds of future strength for the leather and S/M community. Praise and thanks must go in great part to the organizing efforts of the National Leather Association and the Gay Male S/M Activists of New

Tit-rings were more fashionable in this crowd than wedding rings, though straight and bisexuals were made welcome at the conference. And only a stone's throw away, in fact, over 7,000 people attended a lesbian and gay wedding ceremony. In the process of organizing for the Lesbian and Gay March on Washington, this wedding caused some controversy among gay activists. There was some worry that the event might be too reminiscent of the cultish mass matrimonies of Reverend Sun Myung Moon's "Moonies." Some also felt that traditional marriages should hardly be a model for free-spirited people of any sexual persuasion.

This wedding ceremony, however, was devotional without being in any way traditionally religious. Some of the grooms wore gowns, and some of the brides wore tuxes. The message was clear on the signs many people carried: "Love Makes A Family—Nothing More, Nothing Less." Among the lesbian and gay couples, there were also many threesomes, foursomes, and moresomes who had chosen to be wedding partners. John Preston, the infamous S/M fantasist and bon vivant, formed one of the threesomes with his two delectable young traveling companions, one dark, one blond. I can imagine John putting the two through their paces like harnessed ponies, but this is my own fiction. In truth, he treated the two as any good gay uncle would treat his favorite gay nephews.

On the next day, Sunday, October 11, folks from all over the U.S. (and even some groups form abroad) gather for the March itself. According to the conservative estimate of The New York Times, at least 200,000 people celebrated and protested in Washington; 800,000 was the largest official estimate, given in a CBS news broadcast. No matter how the numbers are cut, added or juggled, the demonstration was one of the very biggest of any kind ever held in Washington. People with AIDS were in the front ranks of the marchers, some in wheelchairs. Among the rainbow spectrum of groups and contingents, leatherfolk were among the largest and liveliest. Right in front of us marched a gay musical band, and right behind us marched the Radical Fairies in their gender-bending veils, spangles, and camouflageprinted skirts.

My lover and I did not spend much time listening to the speakers at the rally, and in fact the messages delivered by straight allies such as Presidential candidate Jesse Jackson, Farmworkers Union leader Cesar Chavez, and NOW's Ellie Smeal were fairly predictable. Whoopi Goldberg ruffled some feathers when she referred to Reagan as "the fucking President," but what was missing on that podium was a gay speaker who could preach to the converted and still break new ground. Representative Gerry Studds is an openly gay member of Congress who spoke at the rally, but he lacks fire and he is too much the politician to say certain risky truths about our dismal two-party politics. Their speeches have been reported by the media, and some of the rhetoric did ring with conviction. But my lover and I wandered away from the rally, and joined thousands of others further back on the Mall-those who had gathered at the AIDS quilt.

Laid on the ground, the quilt took approximately the space of two football fields, and was a collection of thousands of individual panels intended as memorials for those who have died of AIDS. We moved silently and solemnly over the quilt, following a grid of cloth pathways. Some people pressed their hands and faces to the quilt when they recognized the name of a friend, lover or relative. Two panels, side by side, were dedicated to two gay brothers by their family. Humor and anger, loss and strength were all stitched and woven into that quilt; sequins, feathers, silk, leather, talismans and mementos of all kinds made the warp and weft of it. One panel contained poetry by Rilke, eight lines of farewell which tipped the scales of my own feelings, so that I was suddenly free to cry. For me, the real rallying of gay spirit took place on the holy ground of that quilt, and that's where the marchers became pilgrims, seekers and finders.

On the following Tuesday, over 600 of us made a further pilgrimage to the Supreme Court, and were arrested for civil disobedience. Nothing broke our spirits—not the crowded cells, not the lack of food and sleep, not the overflowing open toilets, not the cops nor the courts. Those of us who refused to pay fines were not released until Thursday morning, both exhausted and exhilarated. Brothers and sisters, we have a world to win.

CALENDAR

The concept of calendars, the keeping track of important religious, business and social events, has been around for a long time in most cultures. In today's world we receive calendars from businesses, trade establishments, etc., but the calendar found most interesting by individuals is one that covers (or better yet uncovers) their personal fetishes.

We present here five 1988 calendars that we believe will be enjoyed by our readership. Enjoy the sensuality of the year 1988!

BARE CHEST CALENDAR

This outstanding calendar is a presentation of the winners of the 1987 S.F. Eagle Bare Chest Contests, sponsored by The San Francisco Eagle. Each of the twelve men featured are handsome, masculine, and very HOT!

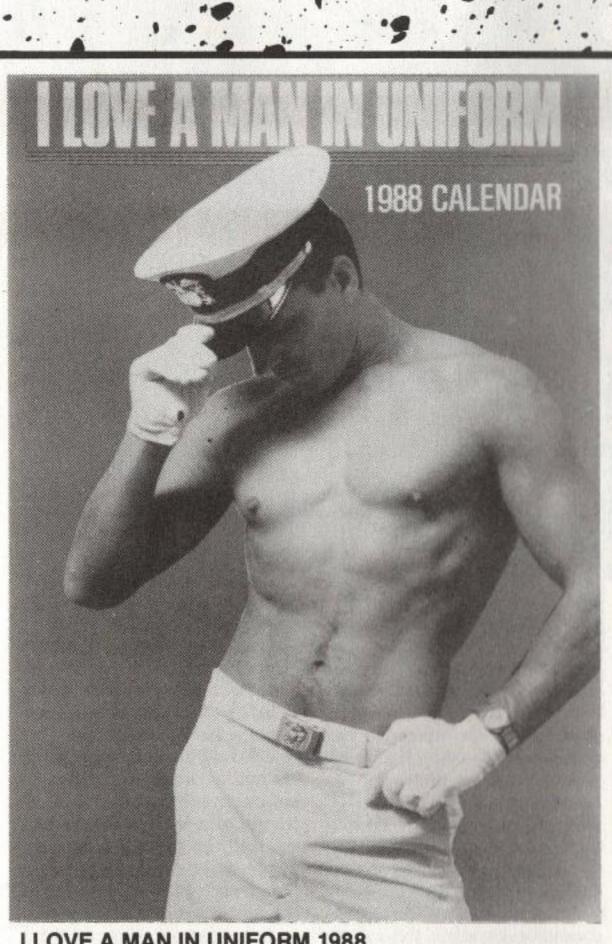

The calendar was photographed by Victor Arimondi, Robert Pruzan, both excellent photographers who have appeared in Drummer, with an appreciated guest shot from Colt Studio. If you are into chests and tits this is the one for you.

All proceeds derived from this calendar will benefit the AIDS Emergency Fund, the Shanti Project, and other AIDS-related charities selected by the S.F. Eagle.

The Bare Chest calendar is black and white and yours for $10 (+ $1 postage and handling in the USA, $2.50 foreign). Send check or money order to: S.F. Eagle, 398 12th St., San Francisco, CA 94103.

I LOVE A MAN IN UNIFORM 1988

A half-dozen of the best photographers join forces to give you one of the hottest calendars of 1988. We all love a man in uniform! The sultry fireman slithering down a pole or a hot cop on the beat—the appeal is universal and it's back for the third outstanding year. Andre Fiset conceived of the uniform calendar for the 1986 market which was an overwhelming success. The 1987 uniform calendar continued the tradition and for those into the uniform fetish it culminates with 1988.

The unique full-color "I Love A Man In Uniform" calendar is yours for $8.95, which includes postage & handling. Send check or money order to: Andre Fiset Productions, PO Box 1721, New York, NY 10116.

EVEN THE LIGHT FARE THESE DAYS SHOWS SOME S/M PROMISE

"A fairy tale, you say? I should go see a fairy tale?"

That's right. And there's a cartoon you should see, too. Not just to catch some consummate male beauty, but for some marvelous torture scenes as well.

Who and what am I talking about? Two films: Rob Reiner's The Princess Bride, which was released this past October, and Masters of the Universe, which created some stir at theaters this summer. Cannon Films will release the latter on videotape in early 1988.

As Peter Falk, the Grandfather, tells his young grandson (Fred Savage), The Princess Bride has everything, "fencing, fighting, torture, revenge, giants, monsters, chases, escapes, love, miracles." Especially torture, and a lot of teasing, too. All of it played with endless schtick and belly laughs.

The story, which William Goldman fashioned from his novel of the same name, tells of love found, then lost, then found again. You know. Boy meets girl, loses girl and gets her back. The hero is Westley (Cary Elwes), and Buttercup (Robin Wright) is his true love.

Peter Falk, reading this bedtime story to his sick grandson, says that Buttercup is the most beautiful woman in the world. But, I must admit, as a friend of mine overheard someone in the audience say, "This is the first movie I've seen with a hero who's more beautiful than the heroine." Trust me. It's true.

You want more? How's this. As the story opens, we are introduced to Buttercup, who "loves tormenting the farm boy" who helps her, reads Grandpa Falk. "Nothing gives her as much pleasure as ordering Westley around," he says. The only time Westley speaks is to reply to an order she gives him. "As you wish," is all he ever says, with "eyes like the sea after a storm."

But you really don't want to know any more about the plot. It would spoil the fun of this film. I can tell you, however, that Westley is tortured exquisitely, and within an inch of his life, as all beautiful heroes should be. I told you this was an S/M story. You didn't trust me. Picture a sadistic device of gears, suction cups and hoses that can suck the life from a bound, angelic boy. And through his nipples, yet! "Life is pain," says Westley. "Anyone who says differently is selling something." Ah, well, he should know.

Intrigued? No one I know has been disappointed.

On to Dolph. A lot of people waited for Masters of the Universe, a film adaptation of the popular cartoon series, with drool cups dangling from their belts. Dolph Lundgren, Sweden's answer to Gold's Gym, Rocky's fourth adversary and ex of Grace Jones, plays He-Man, the blond champion warrior of the planet Eternia. As in the cartoon series, which was built upon the success of Mattel's line of dolls for boys, the story turns on He-Man's eternal struggle with his sworn enemies, Skeletor (Frank Langella) and Evil-Lyn (Meg Foster), for the control of time and space.

Sure, Dolph is magnificent to behold. And, as you wish, he spends the entire movie in a swimsuit, a torso harness, leather shoulder pads and a cape. But you keep wanting to see more of his muscles (the cape's a problem), and wishing he would speak less. And Dolph is surprisingly awkward when he moves. Oh well.

A friend has suggested that Masters of the Universe is really the "Frank Langella Show." That may be true. Frank certainly plays the Top in this movie. And Dolph plays the beautiful bottom. In fact, this movie is really like a squash match on Saturday morning wrestling. And as in that live "cartoon" show, the beauties often get bashed before they triumph.

In this case, Dolph is forced to become Skeletor's slave. But not before Skeletor has one of his thugs lash He-Man into submission with a laser whip. Someone else told me he wanted a loop of that whipping scene so he could play it over and over. It is the best scene in the film. Turn up the screams.

There are some other wonderful elements to the movie. He-Man's proteges include cute high school rock guitarist Kevin Corrigan (Robert Duncan McNeill). Evil-Lyn applies a truth-enforcing slave collar to the boy at one point. It's a marketable product idea I'd wager a lot of Masters would pay a pretty penny to own.

The costumes are inspired. Skeletor's henchmen—Beast-man, Saurod, Blade and Kargundoubtedly inspired a lot of Halloween get-ups for leathermen this fall. Blade may be the best, with his shaved head, and knife blades sprouting from a head-harness and leather shoulder pads. He should have been in Road Warrior. Skeletor's guards closely resemble soldiers from the Galactic Empire of the Star Wars films. Shiny black plastic armor and Darth Vader helmets. Like hardened rubber. Lock one on your own slave.

And what a dungeon the throne room at Castle Greyskull, seat of power on Eternia, would make! It calls to mind a huge pagan temple with massive stone columns and cryptic inscriptions. The primitive rites one could hold there! Alas, most of the plot takes place on Earth, not Eternia. And representing Earth is pre-earthquake downtown Whittier. At least somewhere there's a record of what it looked like before a 6.1 shaker made rock and roll with that town in October. Too bad He-Man wasn't there to save it.

But please, Sir, don't let my snide remarks keep you from renting Masters of the Universe. I'm sometimes a bottom myself. Maybe you could stuff something in my mouth while we watch it. Or perhaps you've got a laser whip you'd like to try . . .

UNDERGROUND WORKOUT

Tape Odyssey's second video tape is now available. This Steve Morgan Production is Underground Workout and it is quite different from Tape Odyssey's earlier Unfriendly Persuasion.

Underground Workout has a cast of a half-dozen men who work out (bench press, forward and straight flyaways, curls, etc.) in solo or dual routines, men who resemble the hunks in your local gym, ages about 21–40, slender to beefy. A good number of them are in fact from producer Morgan's local gym, and it was the sight of these bodybuilders working out week after week, as Morgan himself worked out, that inspired the producer to make this video.

There is no full nudity in the video, no plot, no S/M, no sexual activity. There is a highly charged sequence in which two men oil each other which might lead your imagination into a winner-takes-all wrestling scene but which, in the video, leads to a dual posing routine. The men wear shorts or bikinis, tops or are barechested. There are ass shots and crotch shots revealing full pouches, shots of pecs and biceps and backs and legs, oiled and/or sweat-covered. One man has pierced nipples, which may inspire your erotic imagination.

Some of these men play to the camera, some are oblivious to it, concentrating on pumping iron. Some do pumping only, some do a posing routine as well. Some work out in front of a screen set for the camera, some before a roaring furnace in a cellar that could double for a dungeon (hence the title, underground workout). That dungeonlike setting may inspire your erotic imagination, too.

Underground Workout is aimed at Drummer readers who get off on seeing body-builders sweating and straining, muscles bulging, Drummer viewers who will supply from their own imaginations what the video has deliberately left out. There is plenty in this video to stimulate the libido. Any one of these men is worth harnessing in bondage and placing on the rack in the viewer's imagination. The eroticism of this video comes from what is suggested, in addition to what is given; what is given is food for fantasies, which in turn should lead to a good j.o. response. And the price is right.

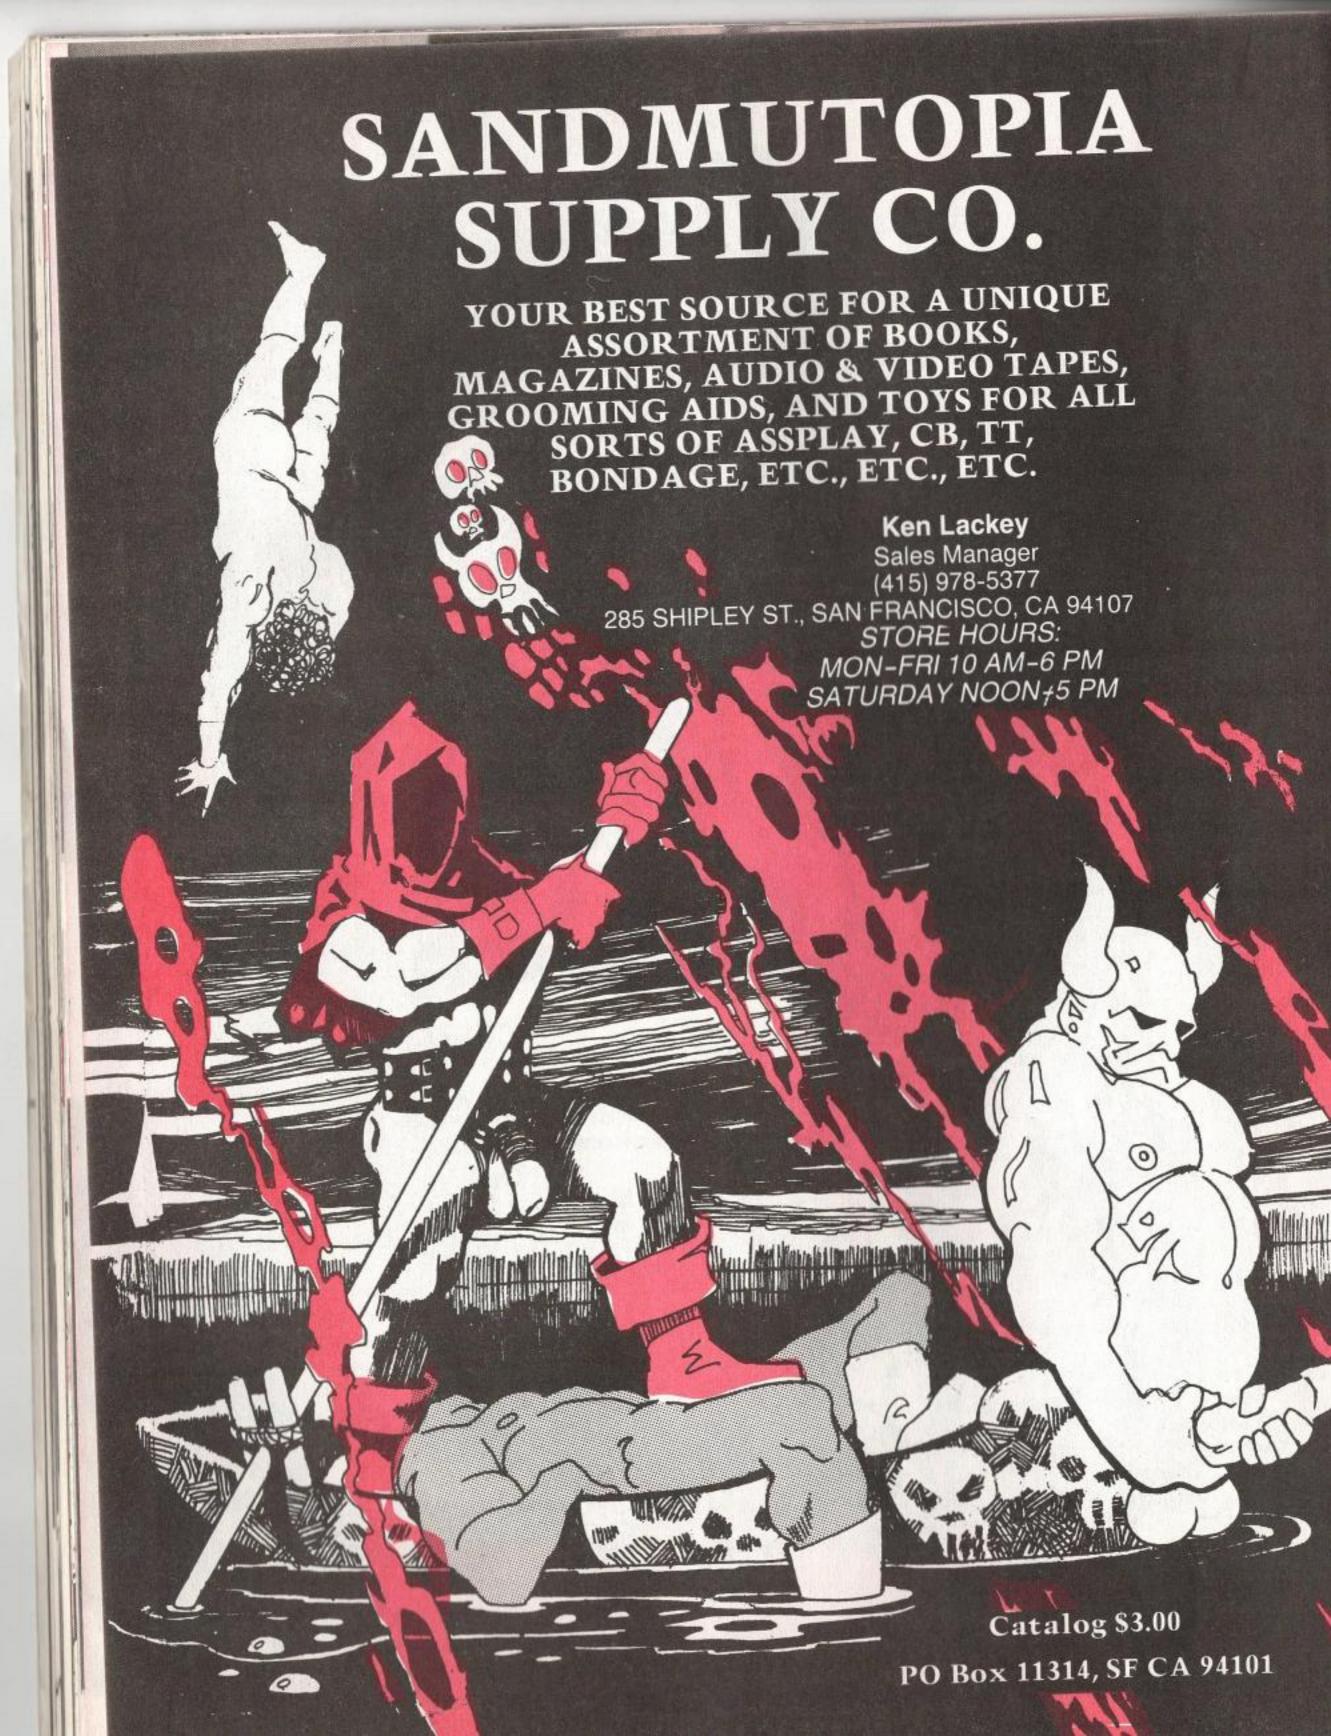

-Victor Terry

Underground Workout is available from Tape Odyssey, PO Box 756, 263A West 19th Street, New York, NY 10011, for $29.95 plus $2.00 shipping and handling, and appropriate sales tax. Running time is approximately 55 minutes.

long time ago, in a galaxy far, far away, a group of leather-skinned Tsidas and naked Tsihcosam gathered to celebrate their planet's holiest festival, Samtsirch. In the quiet afterglow of their day of egadnob, gnippihw and gniggag, a few of them started to chant. The moment was electric. Conversation stopped as people realized what was happening. The sound of the chanting grew louder, fuller, more confident, became real gnignis. Someone switched on a gnipat eniheam in an effort to capture forever this long, sweet, musical moment. One by one, more and more Tsidas and Tsihcosam voices joined in the a capella chorus of joy. The gnipat enihcam silently collected every sound. Hours later, the party ended, and everyone went home for good yad's sleep.

Potrepus, the Tsidas in whose home the celebration had been held, woke early. His memories of the previous day's celebration were warm and happy. He especially remembered the beauty of the gnignis and the fact that an epat had been made of it. He rewound the Potrepus desperately wanted to preserve some fragment, some small testament to the glory of his civilization. Frantically, he looked around his home for something, anything, that would tell civilizations and generations yet to come that their people had existed. His eye fell on the gnipat enihcam. Instantly, he reproduced thousands of copies of the epat, quickly put them into tiny rocket capsules (which he just happened to have handy), along with a brief statement of their origin. Then he set them on random courses all over the universe. Seconds later, Nus exploded.

One copy landed, finally, on the planet called by its inhabitants Earth. By an amazing stroke of luck, it landed in a bar full of people wearing leather clothing. One of the people picked up the epat, which transmutated itself into paper with words printed in English, the native language of the people in the bar. The person started to hum a tune which seemed to fit the lyrics. One by one other denizens picked up the song. So pleased were the singers with the words and music that epat and listened again to the magnificent sounds of his they decided to distribute the songs to as many practitioners of the art of sadomasochism as they could reach, Suddenly an alert was broadcast over his oidar: their in the hope that a new tradition of caroling would start in many parts of the planet.

What you hold in your hands, then, is the sole surviv-Tsidas and Tsihcosam was doomed, along with their ing relic of a splendid civilization. Think of Potrepus

PRESIDENTIAL PROTEST

A sternly worded letter from the president of Yale University has been sent to 2,000 fundraisers, rebutting a story in the Wall Street Journal that depicted Yale as "a gay school."

NO COMPASSION FOR AIDS KIDS

"They don't need to get an education, because ... they only have five years to live," was a comment from an Arcadia, Florida resident, referring to the three Ray brothers who are seropositive and have evoked an embarrassing anger from their community. The parents fought to get the schoolage boys into school, and then the family home burned. Well, the family has left town and investigators have labeled the fire as arson.

ANCIENT BROTHEL FOUND IN ISRAEL

Archaeologists in Israel recently discovered a brothel dating from the 4th Century A.D., the Associated Press reported. The brothel included an ancient kind of hot tub which could hold six people and heart-shaped pillars. Fragments from oil lamps with erotic art depicted were found nearby.

LENGTHY SECURITY CHECKS NIXED

U.S. District Judge Thelton Henderson recently ordered the Defense Department to cease routine lengthy security checks on those who are homosexual who work for private defense contractors, according to the San Francisco Examiner (Aug. 20). Many lesbian and gay workers have found they are subjected to long delays in getting security checks, resulting in their losing certain kinds of jobs. The judge ruled that the equal protection clause of the Constitution prohibits treating gay applicants differently than others unless there is evidence that there is some individual security concern. It is possible the government may decide to appeal the judge's ruling.

IT'S ALL IN THE NAME

The city council of Santa Rosa, California recently agreed to change the name of Cochina Court to Audubon, after residents made the request. The change was made because Cochina means prostitute, and residents were embarrassed to live on "Prostitute Court." Apparently, the original name should have been Katchina, a Hopi name for dolls.

Also recently, Gay Street in West Seneca, NY had its name changed to Fawn Trail because residents found the name a source of embarrassment.

SURPRISE FROM THE

Italian erotic film actress Ilona Staller, who has received much attention after winning a seat in parliament, recently made news by exposing her breasts to the Greek press on her arrival at the Athens airport.

WORTH THE WAIT!

A 57-year-old California clerk sued his lover for palimony and won. The lover had refused to share joint investments when they broke up. This is the first same-sex palimony case—a gay man suing his lover for divorce, and being recognized as partners legally by a court! The settlement was for $2.8 million.

AIDS TESTING USSR STYLE

A government decree said that anyone who resists testing can be brought in for blood tests with the help of the police. Rules for putting the decree into effect haven't been published yet, so it's not clear who is to be singled out for testing.

General testing of foreigners entering the country for longterm stays for the AIDS virus appear to have begun. At this point, it seems that students and diplomats are the main ones affected, although the test is required for anyone who will be in the USSR for more than three months.

COMICS NOT FUNNY TO POLICE

San Franciscans Against Censorship Together (SF ACT) reports that last winter police raided Friendly Frank's Comic Shop, a comics store in Lansing, Illinois, and arrested manager Michael Correa for "intent to disseminate obscene materials." Several comics have been cited as obscene, including such titles as Heavy Metal, Weirdo, and Elektra: Assassin. Officers called some of the books "satanic." Comic artists, in response, have formed the Comic Book Legal Defense Fund, to assist those facing censorship and prosecution. The group will offer a collectors edition portfolio, composed of donated material, to be sold through auction to raise money for the fund. For more information, contact: Comic Book Legal Defense Fund, PO Box 501, Princeton, WI 54968.

KEEPING THE PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE

In Amsterdam recently a $200,000 monument was dedicated in a ceremony attended by about 1,000 people "including top officials." The monument consists of three pink marble triangles, symbolizing the past, present, and future of the gay rights movements. The monument was created and paid for partially by the Dutch government.

HOLIDAY INN NOT DECENT?

The National Federation for Decency (NFD) is attacking Holiday Inns over its policy of showing what it calls "softcore porn" on a pay television service shown in the motel chain's rooms. Holiday Inn maintains it only shows films rated G, PG, PG-13, or R and does not show X-rated films, and is concerned that NFD is giving out wrong information. NFD is planning pickets and boycotts until Holiday Inn changes its policy.

FLORIDA ROUGH ON PORN

The Wall Street Journal reported on the use of the Florida Racketeer-Influenced and Corrupt Organizations (RICO) law against adult bookstores. Since conviction under RICO can result in 30 years in prison and forfeiture of assets, defendants often choose to plead guilty to lesser charges or for lesser penalties rather than risk conviction in a trial. Prosecutors use a number of misdemeanor convictions to establish a "pattern of racketeering."

The use of RICO laws and heavy police harassment has resulted in the virtual elimination of adult bookstores in cities such as Fort Lauderdale and Orlando. The Journal states that 11 other states also allow use of RICO laws to prosecute obscenity, but an appeal of the practice is likely in Florida; an appeal in Indiana resulted in the use of RICO laws being upheld, but a U.S. Supreme Court appeal is planned. Now, in Fort Lauderdale, police are going after video stores that have erotic films for rent or sale. Police have been warning proprietors that some films could be considered obscene, but they do not say which, and they warn that they could return and make obscenity arrests. Video store owners have filed suit to make police state which films are considered obscene, and, in the meantime, have been more careful of what they stock.

LEATHER NOTEBOOK

by LARRY TOWNSEND

Dear Larry,

I am normally a Top-late forties, over six feet—and I have only bottomed out four or five times in my life. However, I have found one longstanding fantasy I would really like to have fulfilled; namely, I want to be the recipient of a fraternitytype initiation. I would prefer that this be done by a guy who is younger than I am. After running a number of ads in Drummer and other publications, I have still been unsuccessful in finding a partner. Short of paying for the service do you have any suggestions?

Name and location withheld

Dear Withheld,

If you are like most men with long-standing fantasies, you have probably honed your mental images into a specific scenario that can never be fulfilled unless you spell it out, step by step, before the start of the scene. This is one of the classic dilemmas for an M, because he either wrecks the Top to bottom relationship by appearing to take over the direction, or else lets the Top do his thing and ends up being unfulfilled. That is the problem which has-or will-exist even after you find a willing and capable partner. As to the initiation scene itself, there are some real difficulties in pulling it off. The genuine action usually takes place in a frat house, where there is plenty of room and a good number of participants. There is also an underlying "college boy" mentality that most of us can only vaguely remember. It is certainly going to be hard to duplicate if you hire a street hustler to play Pledgemaster. So, how do we solve all these problems? The fact that you are normally a Top should be the most intriguing factor you have going for you. Many younger guys are turned on by the concept of "working Daddy over." You might even consider turning one of your bottoms into Pledgemaster for the occasion thus making the humiliation all the greater. It might also provide the opportunity for a greater structuring of the scene you want played out. I really don't know what else to suggest, since finding the partner still has to come about as the result of your own efforts. (I do know that the Chicago Hellfire Club has a committee on their Inferno run to help in just such cases as yours. There may be other clubs trying the same thing, but I do not know for sure.)

Dear Larry,

I read Drummer and a lot of other gay publications that carry fiction and your type of "Dear Abby" columns, and it seems to me that a lot of what you write about is unconscionable in view of the present health crisis. How can you even suggest that someone go out and have sex when it might mean they end up with AIDS. It sure scares the shit out of me to think about it.

A.R., Houston, TX

Dear A.R.

Don't think for a moment that these considerations have not crossed my mind, as they surely have those of every other responsible person in the gay writing/publishing field. And there certainly is a division of opinion. Some, like you, feel that only safe sex stories should be published or put on film. Maybe you're right, but I see it a little differently. Although we know that there are certain forms of sexual behavior in which we must not engage, the fantasies are still present. Reading about them, or seeing them enacted in a video (where the action may or may not be only simulated), permits a guy to enjoy vicarious experiences that would otherwise be denied him. I don't see this as basically different from the stay-at-home who enjoys reading stories of high adventure. I enjoy a good Ludum-type thriller from time to time, but this doesn't mean I'm going to go out and start mowing people down with an Usi. Neither are Agatha Christie fans any more likely to poison the local vicar than nonreaders. Reading fiction is most often done as an escape from the humdrum of our daily lives. Why should stories of sexual adventure be any different? And as to us "Dear Abby" types, I don't think that any of us advocate unsafe sex practices, either from the standpoint of AIDS dangers or any other. Within my own particular genre, it is even less apt to promote health risks. Bondage, whipping, and most of the other more common SM activities do not involve an exchange of body fluids. In this sense, they are the safest form of quasi-sexual behavior.

Mr. Townsend, Sir,

I am writing to you in hopes that you can help me, SIR. I am 26 years-old, 5'11", 175 lbs., SIR. Currently married, going on six years. I am not happy. I need to be a slave, to surrender totally to a Master. I want to be kept in bondage, naked, existing only to please my Master, SIR. Bellingham affords little chance to meet a Master, and I don't about advertising know through the mail as to do this would leave to much to chance. I would enter the leather world mostly a novice. I am willing to give myself totally to a man who would mold me into exactly the kind of slave he wants. I would be willing to do anything for such a man, SIR. What should I do? I want so badly to be a slave owned by somebody, my body being used solely for my Master's pleasure. How, SIR, can I find a Master who wants me?

> Your humble slave, Bellingham, WA

Dear Humble,

If you're really sure as of yourself as your letter indicates, you don't seem to have much choice but to slip your current traces and seek greener pastures—perhaps in Seattle? California? But remember, there is a serious health crisis out there. Don't let someone subject you to any high-risk behavior just because you are so anxious to please. Like playing the stock market, there are no guarantees, but you can't win if you don't take the risks. (And I mean the risk of giving up your current security, not gambling with your health.)

Dear Larry,

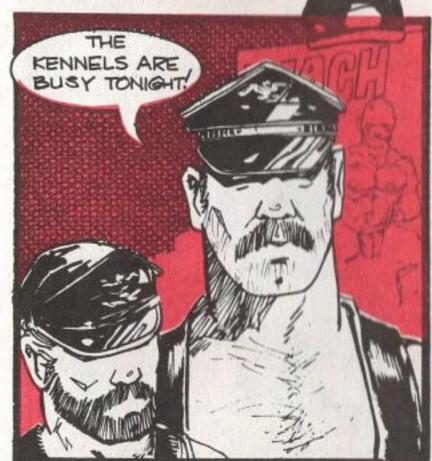

I have been reading the story by Randy Shilts in California Magazine (Oct., '87) about the Air Canada steward who is suspected of being responsible for spreading AIDS all over the U.S. in the early 1980s. In the course of the article they mention Zaire as a source from which some other people may have contracted the virus and carried it into Europe. Just as a matter of curiosity, knowing that you obviously keep up on the current theories, where do you think it started? I read another piece (I forget where) that seems to imply that it actually started in New York.

Alfred, San Diego, CA

Dear Al,

There are so many fanciful explanations, it is hard to know which to believe. Some people think it came from Haiti, others that it was a Russian chemical warfare experiment. Soviet disinformation mill claims it was a CIA project gone awry, and still others who pretend that it isn't caused by a virus at all, but: 1) the result of using poppers, 2) God's vengeance on a sinful population, 3) a psychological indisposition resulting from mass hysteria ... and on into the night. I tend to favor the theory of the (mostly) French researchers that it did originate in Central Africa, as a mutation from a virus infecting other primates. It may or may not have been introduced into the U.S. via Haiti-probably not, according to the best available, research-based current opinions. I also read the article, which I strongly recommend to everyone. It is certainly a classic example of how one irresponsible man can injure innumerable people.

Discount? When paying for more than one insertion, you may deduct 10% on the additional insertion(s). Our rates are a fraction of the competition.

Want a Drummer box number? Add a buck, that's all. The responses to your box will be forwarded to your address as soon as we receive them. Box numbers can be assigned for personal ads only.

Phone number? Run your number for instant results. But include a dollar for us to call you to verify the number for your protection and ours.

Payment? Pay by check, money order, Visa, Mastercard or American Express. If paying by credit card, include card number and expiration date along with your signature.

Censorship? No, Sir! — provided you keep references to minors, animals, prostitution or drugs out of your ad. These we cannot accept. And, of course, you must be 21 or better.

How to reply to a Drummer box number: Answering a Drummer box number is easy, but the few rules we have are hard and fast, so observe them or else. 1) Seal your letter in an envelope on which you have written the box number on the back flap in pencil. 2) Put your return address on the envelope if you wish the letter to be returned to you should there be some problem with delivery. 3) PUT PROPER POSTAGE ON THE ENVELOPE—domestic postage is 22¢ for the first ounce, 17¢ for each additional ounce. Foreign overseas postage is 44¢ per one-half ounce. Enclose a quarter (25¢) for each envelope and we will immediately address them and mail them out. 4) Put the whole thing (sealed letter and forwarding fee) in another envelope and send it to DESMODUS, Inc., PO Box 11314, San Francisco, CA 94101-1314. LETTERS NOT PROPERLY PREPARED WILL BE DESTROYED.

IT'S THAT EASY! And that's the way it should be. The pages of this magazine have always been a communication center for leathermen! By expanding and simplifying Dear Sir, we are doing just that. No deadlines, no headaches, no $7 box charges, no $20 cancellation fee, no $5 phone verification fee. And only 50¢ a word!

FOR LEATHER FRATERNITY MEMBERS ONLY: Your 50-word ad is included for the next twelve issues as part of your membership. Change your ad as often as you like—but remember to keep your ad within the 50-word limit to allow space for everyone else's. Any Leather Fraternity ad not complying to this limit will be edited.

There is no box charge and if you send replies to other advertisers you don't need to bother sending in the 25¢ forwarding fee per envelope. How about that! The Leather Fraternity is a real deal even without these features. With them, it is an even bigger bargain!

CROSSROADS . . .

Where Leathermen Meet.

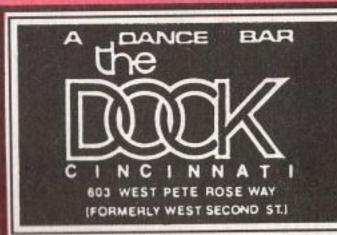

By placing an ad in this section, a bar or other business is telling you that they welcome Leathermen.

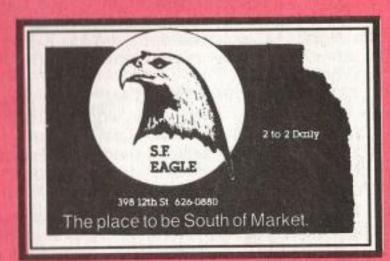

By accepting their ad, Drummer is telling you that the bar has been recommended by a Leather/SM club or a recognized individual in the community as a good place to meet and socialize with other Leathermen. In larger cities, these will be THE leather bars; in other areas, they will be the more general purpose bars where Leathermen do go to socialize. Help us alert Drummer readers and travelers to the RIGHT place to go to meet Leathermen in your part of the world. Send us bar owners and managers about placing one of these low-priced ads. If you see a business listed here that you think shouldn't be, let us know about that, too. -Fledermaus your recommendations and talk to the right

for presenting, not necessarily our "best" face, not our "least offensive" face, but our REAL face.

A gay lawyer from Philadelphia, leatherman, Columbia graduate, who has a son by a previous marriage, sings in the local gay chorus and attends the Metropolitan Community Church, had a real dilemma. Should he march with the gay attorneys' group, the leather contingent, the Columbia alumni group, behind the city of Philadelphia banner, with the Gay Fathers group, with his chorus, or with MCC? My example is fictitious but many men and women faced similar choices. The SM/Leather Contingent included about 600 persons. But many more men and women in leather, and/or in the Contingent's "Safe, Sane, Consensual" T-shirts, were scattered throughout the other groups and along the sidewalks.

On Saturday over a thousand leathermen and women attended the Conference held at the Commerce Department's Auditorium. It was great to meet so many people I've known by correspondence and/or reputation only. And it was great to introduce some of my own good friends from different parts of the country to each other. Many CHC associate members from around the country were in attendance but I was rather disappointed that only one full member from Chicago attended. Attendance from the East Coast, from Maine to Florida, was very strong, and Texas and the West Coast states were very well represented, but the leathermen and women from most of the heartland were there only in small numbers. This was particularly disappointing to this native Midwesterner who is always fighting for recognition of a gay leatherlife between the Appalachians and Rockies. Thanks, Texas.

The conference itself was well organized and the sessions, by all reports, were excellent. However, half a day did not really allow time for the kinds of programs or personal exchanges I have experienced at Living in Leather. The conference ended with a meeting to discuss having such conferences annually, either through the auspices of the NLA or some new national umbrella organization. The Disciples of de Sade in Dallas offered to host an organizational meeting to which S/M leather clubs from around the country could send delegates, in January or February of 1988. We will keep you posted on this.

The most moving experience of the entire weekend was my visit to the Names Project quilt. Stepping away from the rally and onto the quilt was like stepping into a totally different world, a world of silence and grief. As one person said, "this is OUR Arlington." The quilt is now to tour the country. Make sure that it comes to your city, and make sure you pay it a visit.

SANDMUTOPIA UNIVERSITY VIDEO

Something Different in S/M Viewing

Each tape has two parts. Part One is a demonstration in which Professor Fledermaus uses a hunky bottom to demonstrate equipment and techniques. The second half of each video is a "hands-on" session; a session in which the techniques discussed in the first part are put into practice.

SUV1 SENSITIZING THE SKIN

Fledermaus demonstrates the violet wand and hot wax techniques, then proceeds on to an extended hot wax scene which includes a cock casting. $69.95

SUV2 ROPE THAT WORKS

Fledermaus gives the facts on rope bondage, including a few basic ties and details on the rope body harness. Then four men engage in a lively scene that includes four different bondage positions as well as a lot of ass beating and cock & ball torture.

SUV3 WHIPS 1, BEATING ASS

Fledermaus demonstrates a wide variety of implements from fly swatters to exotic whips and explains techniques for variations from light stimulation of the skin to deep, lasting bruises. Then Master Mario demonstrates ass beating with two different bottoms. $69.95

NEW! SUV4 WHIPS 2, LONG WHIPS

Fledermaus demonstrates a variety of cats and other long-tailed whips on the back and ass of a spread-eagled bottom. Then Fred and Henry engage in a heavy back flogging. You've seen stills from their scenes in three Zeus Inferno books. Now, for the first time, action video is available for this dynamic duo.

Each video is approximately one hour in length. Specify VHS or Beta. VHS will be shipped if you do not specify. No refunds or exchanges except in the event of a defective tape. Please give an address for UPS delivery. If you insist on a PO Box, include $5 extra for insurance and special handling. Photos shown here are from SUV3, Whips 1, Beating Ass.

In these days of doubt and fear it is always a pleasure to find a book that gives positive, sound, research-based information on anal sexuality while dispelling the myths. It is commonly believed that people who regularly enjoy sensual or erotic anal stimulation inevitably run a greater risk of developing medical problems. The belief is that one must choose-either anal pleasure or anal health. For many, the strength of this conviction has been intensified even further by the AIDS crisis.

However, in spite of AIDS, it is still possible to enjoy anal stimulation in a self-affirming and healthful way. To do so requires challenging the anal taboo, a deeply ingrained, unquestioned prohibition against becoming intimately familiar with the anal area and its erotic potential.

In Anal Pleasure & Health, the reader will discover that there is no inherent conflict between anal pleasure and anal health. On the contrary, a person who wishes to expand his/her capacity for enjoying anal stimulation is advised to take virtually the same steps as the person who desires optimum anal health.

Dr. Morin covers such forbidden topics as anal selfexploration, locating and exercising anal and pelvic muscles, stress and tension release through anal stimulation, proper douching and lubrication techniques, physiological aspects of "fisting," confronting the taboos concerning feces, homophobia and masculine/feminine roles, oral-anal stimulation (rimming) and even suggestions on finding a sympathetic physician.

Now in its second edition, Anal Pleasure & Health contains full research data, bibliography, and an entirely new section on common medical problems of the anus and rectum which includes a comprehensive discourse on AIDS and coping with the crisis. Dr. Morin's research has shown that both anal pleasure and health are not particularly difficult for most people to attain when they are given adequate information, a sequence of simple recommendations and a little encouragement-all of which can be found in Anal Pleasure & Health.

HARKER WADE/ZEUS LEATHER STUD FEATURED IN: MR HANDSOME IN BONDAGE

If handsome is close to the top of your check list of prerequisites for bondage subjects, Harker Wade is "Chippendale's" caliber. He's also very hot, very humpy, and very into showing off his muscles in tight restraint. Stripped down to chaps and boots, we gagged him, tied off his cock and balls, and put him in a nylon webbing "pec harness" to which his wrists were hoisted up and tied high behind his back "Now work my nipples" he begged. We bit deep into his pumped tits with a pair of heavy duty industrial clamps. Once secured, Harker began flexing and straining against his bonds. This bodybuilder works hard for you in bondage, and they don't get much hotter, humpier, or more handsome. ZZ-213/Handsome(85x7 B&W)...$10.00

VASM IS FIVE

Now a tradition, the Fifth Anniversary of the Vancouver Activists in S/M was celebrated on Thanksgiving Weekend, October 10th and 11th. The Meet and Greet reception was held at 1 pm in the lounge of the Heritage House Hotel on Saturday, the 10th. Attracting guests to the food table was a living centerpiece: a young man encased in plastic wrap and bound so as to eliminate any possibility of movement. Temptingly arranged around and over him were canapes and fruit.

After this sociable hour, guests settled down to watch a special video prepared and donated to VASM by Bill Bailey, leader of the New World Rubber Men, San Diego. The video showed clips from an assortment of events and scenes recorded over several years. These were introduced by Bill in an explanatory prologue. Following the Rubber Men's tape, George Whiting showed a video which was filmed at the Chicago Hellfire Club's Inferno XVI in September. This tape was kindly donated to George by David Tabor of Burbank.

A short Happy Hour preceded the Anniversary Dinner at 7:30 pm. The waiter, outfitted in full leather, handed his leash to each guest in turn and led him to his place at table. The table setting was in black and red, and the red napkins were held in leather "napkin rings" bearing the VASM logo. These mementos, destined to be used as ball stretchers, were donated by Mack of Mack's Leathers and became sought-after souvenirs. At the end of the dinner, a letter of greetings and congratulations brought from the National Leather Association by Secretary George Nelson was read.

Guests were accommodated overnight at the hotel. It has been reported that visits between rooms overflowed into the hallway where the Society's wooden cross had been erected. At some time in the early daylight hours the cross vanished. What was described by one Seattle member as "the search for the true cross" then began. Eventually, a clue was dropped on the table at brunch, leading searchers to the room of two Portland guests who had themselves vanished by this time. A message had been attached to the cross which will elicit a suitable response in due course.

After a very enjoyable midday brunch, members assembled in the lounge for the Annual General Meeting. The past executives and helpers were thanked for their work and determination during a difficult year. Officers were elected for the 1987-88 term as follows: President, George Whiting; Vice President, Mack MacKinnon; Secretary, Anthony Miranda; Treasurer, George Cameron; Director at Large, Dean Dunlap.

COME TO THE WINNERS' CIRCLE

Centaur MC is once again sponsoring their Leather Weekend, featuring the fourth annual Mr. Mid-Atlantic Leatherman contest in Washington DC, January 15-17, 1988. The contest attracts entries from up and down the Atlantic seaboard. Last year's winner, Michel Rousse from Montreal, went on to be 1st Runner Up at the International Mr. Leather contest in Chicago. Judges for this year's contest include Michel Rousse; Mike Murray, Mr. Drummer 1986; Colt Thomas, International Mr. Leather 1983; Patrick Toner, International Mr. Leather 1985; Damian Sanzone, Mr. Baltimore Leather 1987; Michael Savage, Mr. Philadelphia Leather 1987; Vern Stewart, Seattle Gay News, Seattle, WA; and Usher, a New York photographer. For a hot leather weekend with some beautiful male flesh encased in cowhides, contact Centaur Motorcycle Club for more information. (PO Box 362, Arlington VA 22210)

INFERNO XVI

Inferno XVI was held on the weekend following Labor Day again this year with a capacity attendance of just over 200 men from around the world. Remarkable as it seems, Inferno just seems to get better each year, and this was my 12th. In fact, since Andrew was unable to attend this year, I am now the only person who has attended ALL Infernos. How can I have attended all if I've only been to 12 and this was XVI? That is one of the secrets, but it is true. You'll be hearing more about Inferno in an upcoming issue and seeing photos from this year's event in a future Drummer and/or Mach.

BLACK FROST '88

The Black Guard has announced that the Black Frost Gypsy Caravan will be held February 12 through 14 in Minneapolis. Some very special events have been scheduled, including an Enduro (in February in Minneapolis!!! now THAT is ENDURANCE!) and a Gypsy Show. The registration form has a blank labeled: "For the 'people games,' please describe any unusual feature or mark you have (such as a birthmark or tattoo), and approximately where it's located." Sounds intriguing. Since it's President's Day weekend, plans run through Sunday for those who can stay. (PO Box 8989, Minneapolis, MN 55408)

BOUND AND GAGGED GOOF

In the listing of new magazines in Drummer 103, Fledermaus included Bound and Gagged, a "true experiences" magazine for men into bondage. But he goofed in listing the address. The correct address is Outbound Press, Suite 729, 263A West 19th Street, New York, NY 10011. Bob Wingate tells us that many letters with the transposed street number we gave ARE getting through, so don't panic. But if you haven't heard from them soon, try again at the correct street number.

The first edition of Bound and Gagged is now out, and looks to be all it promised. One photo has become a bedside favorite all this week!

FOR LOVE AND FOR LIFE

The second National March on Washington for Lesbian and Gay Rights, on October 11, tions, attracting half a million people—gay and straight from all over the country. (Prodictably, the police estimates of the crowd were much lower. but even they credited us with 200,000.) We assembled on the Ellipse beginning at 9 am, and at noon the first conlingent, a group of people with AIDS, many in wheelchairs, began their journey around the White House and on to the Capitol. We marched to demand an end to governmental anti-gay discrimination, such as that expressed by the US Supreme Court's Hardwick decision upholding state sodomy laws, and to demand more money for AIDS research, patient care, and support services for PWA's. Our coming togethor was the largest civil rights 1987, far exceeded all expectas gathering in the US in this decade, and it reaffirmed the may movement's position as a vital social and political force. For those of us into S/M and leather, the March was a political coming out. By marching in our own contingent-more than 500 men and womenand by being represented on the March's national steering committee since it was formed in November 1986, we have assumed our rightful position at the forefront of the gay movement. This was the first time that a national coalition of gay and lesbian organizations invited members of the S/M and leather community to be a part of the leadership, marking an end to discrimination from within our movement and signaling the all-encompassing character of the March on Washington.

Our community also used the March weekend to hold the largest S/M-Leather conference ever. On Saturday, October 10, an ornate marble hall echoed to the tap of boot heels as more than 1,000 leathermen and women celebrated our right to choose any safe, sane, consensual way we wish to express our sexuality. The conference proved a unique opportunity for gay men and lesbians of our persuasion, as well as many biand heterosexual S/M men and women from all over the country, to meet each other, exchange ideas, and take the first steps toward establishing a national network to share information about our needs, problems, and resources.

From 1:30 to 5 pm, the conference offered a series of panel discussions and workshops on politics, social and lifestyle issues, and activism. The participants ranged from those with a total commitment to S/M or leather to those who indulge one Saturday a month, from tattoo artists, bikers, and piercing fetishists to investment bankers, lawyers, and nurses a carnival of personalities reflecting the enormous variety of ways we express ourselves. There were also tables where organizations passed out literature and sold buttons and Tshirts, as well as exhibit/sales space for suppliers of leathergoods, S/M gear, publications and other materials.

In the late afternoon, a plenary session of the conference brought us together again for greetings from the many groups represented and other expressions of unity. Keynote speaker was Judy Tallwing McCarthy, Ms. International Leather for 1987. After a dinner break, the conference concluded Saturday night with a big party in the same space. The party was sponsored by various clubs and bars, and some 500 of us attended.

We in the S/M-Leather community face prejudices from the world at large, from many of our gay and lesbian brothers and sisters, and, in some ways, from ourselves. We can no longer be ashamed. We no longer need to sneak through back alleys to meet each other. The weekend of October 10-11, 1987 was an overwhelming affirmation of our rights, freedoms, values, and joys.

Many persons helped make the weekend a success. Several members of GMSMA and of LSM assisted with the initial planning and a wide variety of activities from inception to cleanup. Members of Avatar in Los Angeles produced a brochure to promote the conference. The NLA organized the conference programs and several men and women from all across the country assisted by participating as panelists. Members of Dreizehn in Boston and Disciples of de Sade in Dallas coordinated the organization and business tables. Members of SigMa and PEP from DC coordinated the party Saturday evening. Many others helped with publicity and a wide variety of tasks in planning for the event, and on the day itself. To all of them, and to all the men and women who attended, I offer a heartfelt thanks.

THE PERILS OF S/M PUBLISHING

On Wednesday, October 14, 1987, at GMSMA's invitation, I was joined by Lou Thomas, Editor of Manscape and Manscape 2, and V. K. McCarty, Editor of Penthouse Variations, for a panel discussion of problems in publishing S/M. The three panelists represented three quite different kinds of publishing operation, ranging from the Penthouse group, which has been referred to as the "Time/Life of erotica" to a small "family" operation like Drummer. Surprisingly, many of our problems were the same, but because of size, our solutions were often quite different. We all talked about censorship from without, particularly the repression of, and because of, the Meese commission, and from Canadian censors. We also discussed censorship from the management of the magazine itself and by its advertisers. We barely got into the subject of censorship by the customers when we had to draw it to a close. The audience seemed to enjoy the session and I know I learned a lot. Thanks to V. K. and Lou for participating and to GMSMA for inviting us.

S/M NETWORKING

"One of the thrills of the Leather-S/M Convention in October was being jolted out of our routines and complacency by contact with like-minded people from all across the nation. Gay, straight, male, female—what united us was a set of common (if unusual) interests. Very few of us escaped being enriched and stimulated by these contacts. A proposal has now been made to create an organization, a consultative council, to encourage and promote the kind of networking that is already beginning to take place, however tentatively and haphazardly. The Dallas Disciples of de Sade have offered to host an organizing meeting in early 1988. The prospect was thoroughly discussed at the monthly SigMa meeting of October 12th, and the consensus among members present was overwhelmingly positive. The Board of SigMa expects to be represented at this 'Constitutional Convention' and welcomes input from members. There is a broad range of guestions that have to be considered and, we hope, resolved before this venture gets off the ground. There is already a nearuniversal commitment to opening membership to all, regardless of sexual orientation or gender. But should it be an organization focused primarily on S&M (one suggested title is COSMOS—Confederation Of SM OrganizationS), or open to the much broader (and vaguer) concept of 'Leather?' How will we balance the possibly conflicting interests of a few 'elephants' (organizations with hundreds of members) with those of a large number of 'mice' (groups with perhaps no more than a half-dozen or dozen members)—shades of 1778! What should be the functions of this central body: publishing a common periodical? organizing annual or occasional conventions? setting up a speakers' bureau to allow us to take advantage of each other's expertise? facilitating travellers' contacts, both organizationally and one-on-one? political activity to protect our rights in an ever more restrictive and threatening environment? . . .? You get the point. But now's the time to raise these questions so that we can develop a 'SigMa position' rather than just relying on the instincts, opinions, and whims of whoever ends up going to Dallas. Share your views with the Board-either verbally or in writing."

The above is reprinted from the SigMa newsletter. Though it is directed at SigMa members, I have reprinted it here because the questions raised are ones that should be put before every club that plans to participate in the Dallas meeting, now scheduled for February 12-14. The conference, now being called "SM/Leather Contingent Washington Followup," is open to any and all SM/Leather clubs interested in participating. It is hoped that clubs will send designated representatives. Interested individuals who are not currently members of clubs will be welcome, but the main purpose of the meeting is to organize existing clubs into an umbrella organization.
